British Soldiers Move Into Oman

Will Back Up Drive To End Rebellion

MANAMA, Bahrain (AP)—British troops commanded by a trouble-shooting old jungle fighter moved into simmering Muscat and Oman Saturday to back up the pro-British Sultan's drive to put down revolt.

Foot soldiers with machineguns, mortars and armored cars were moving by air and sea. Their first objective was Nizwa, believed to be the headquarters of the Imam of Oman, leader of a tough and trained band of rebels.

Reports from London said a detachment of Scottish Highland troops already had entered the restive domain on the southern tip of the Arabian Peninsula. The reports also said seasoned Cameronian troops had reached Ibri, a fort held by the Sultan. The rebels have claimed they seized the fort and had its British-led Trucial Oman scouts surrounded.

Expect Short Campaign

Air Vice Marshal Laurence F. Sinclair, commander of Britain's Persian Gulf forces, said he expected a short campaign once the attack started. He declined on security grounds to say when that would be.

Sinclair said the British troops would limit themselves to giving support fire to the Sultan's forces and would not enter villages. Once the Sultan has regained control, the British troops will be pulled out, Sinclair said.

Roberts In Command

The task force is under the command of Brig. Gen. "Jimmy" Roberts, who fought in the jungles of Maylaya in World War II and later commanded a brigade on troubled Cyprus.

Sinclair said RAF jet planes would continue their attacks on rebel strongholds. The British announced their biggest air strikes against the rebels Friday. They claimed they smashed a truck two miles north of Nizwa. It is believed the rebels have but one truck left now.

The Sultan called on the British two weeks ago to help him retain his potentially oil-rich domain in an area where the British have strong holdings. The British agreed to air strikes but said at the time they did not want to use ground troops if they could help it.

The Imam, booted into exile two years ago by the Sultan, wants to set up an independent Sultanate. The British claim the Imam, once the religious leader of Oman, has received outside help, implying modern weapons used by the rebels came from Saudi Arabia and Egypt.

"MECHANIZED MASSACRE"

WASHINGTON (AP)—FBI Director J. Edgar Hoover Saturday described the nation's highway death toll as "mechanized massacre." He said the reckless driver can cause as much grief as the kidnaper and the armed robber.

"No longer can we allow speeders and reckless drivers the false cloak of 'petty offenders,'" Hoover asserted in an editorial in the August issue of the FBI law enforcement Bulletin.

Hint McElroy Slated To Succeed Wilson

WASHINGTON (AP)—Neil H. McElroy, 52-year-old Ohio soap manufacturer, was reported under active consideration Saturday for a high government post.

But whether he is slated to succeed Charles E. Wilson as secretary of defense or take over some other job was a matter of conjecture.

Some persons high in government and business reported McElroy was high on the list of those being considered as Wilson's successor, but one top administration official said that was not necessarily the job President Eisenhower has in mind.

This official told a reporter he doubts that any decision has been reached on a new defense secretary. He said McElroy's appointment to a top government job could be expected soon. He ruled out the possibility that it might be to succeed John B. Hollister, who is resigning as foreign aid director.

The Cincinnati Enquirer reported that McElroy, who is president of Procter & Gamble Co., was due in Washington Monday for conferences about Wilson's job. Wilson has been planning for some time to retire.

McElroy himself was quoted in Cincinnati as saying that "something is under consideration," but that nothing has been settled. McElroy said it is entirely in Washington's hands.

McElroy is known to both Eisenhower and Wilson. He was chairman of a presidential committee on education and has had extensive contact with the government in connection with contracts of his firm.

McElroy joined Procter & Gamble in 1925 and has been president of the big soap manufacturing concern since 1948.

Administration decision on a man to accept a government job is only part of the problem. The second, and often more difficult part is to induce a top executive to abandon a highly paid job in private industry for the $25,000 salary of a Cabinet officer and to dispose of all his stock holdings in any company which does business with the government.

Envoy To Cuba Silent About Meddling Charge

HAVANA, Cuba (AP)—U. S. Ambassador Earl E. T. Smith came back to Havana Saturday from a four-day tour of the rebel hotbed of Oriente Province but declined to say anything about what he had seen or heard there.

"I have nothing to say," he declared as newsmen started to ask him about charges by some Cuban government officials that he was attempting to meddle in this nation's internal affairs.

Smith for the last three days has been under heavy fire of Cuban newspapers and officials for expressing disapproval of police who used fire hoses to break up a women's demonstration in Santiago de Cuba last Wednesday. A resolution now is pending in Cuba's Congress to demand his recall for alleged interference in Cuban matters.

The U. S. State Department has asked Smith to explain statements attributed to him at Santiago de Cuba, where he told women demonstrators demanding "freedom" he was willing to listen to their complaints.

Meanwhile all Cuba remained under tight military rule. The government is diligently enforcing a 45-day suspension of constitutional guarantees.

A checkup of key centers in most of Cuba showed most businesses and other activities were returning to normal slowly after scattered strikes and sabotage.

Civic resistance leaders opposed to the government of President Fulgencio Batista have sought to stir up general strikes to paralyze the nation, hoping to work in some way toward Batista's downfall.

COOLIDGE'S HOME BECOMES SHRINE

PLYMOUTH, Vt. (AP)—The Coolidge homestead, where Calvin Coolidge became the 30th president of the United States 34 years ago, was given to the state of Vermont Saturday as a shrine.

It was in the lamplit parlor of the white-painted house that Coolidge's father, Col. John C. Coolidge—a village notary—administered the oath of office as President of the United States to his son.

A deed to the property in this hamlet of 348 residents was presented to Gov. Joseph B. Johnson Saturday by John Coolidge, only surviving son of the late president.

Soviet Blasts Dulles Proposals At Disarm Meet

LONDON (AP)—The Moscow radio charged Saturday night Secretary of State Dulles "reduced to nothing the four months work" of the London disarmament conference with his inspection proposals.

"One concludes that the Western Powers want to ignore partial measures for disarmament and replace them all by aerial reconnaissance," an anonymous commentator said in a French-language broadcast.

"Thus Dulles reduced to nothing the four months work of the subcommittee (of the United Nations), implying that the questions discussed up to now are of no importance and that the main thing is aerial photography."

The commentator added: "That cannot be agreed to."

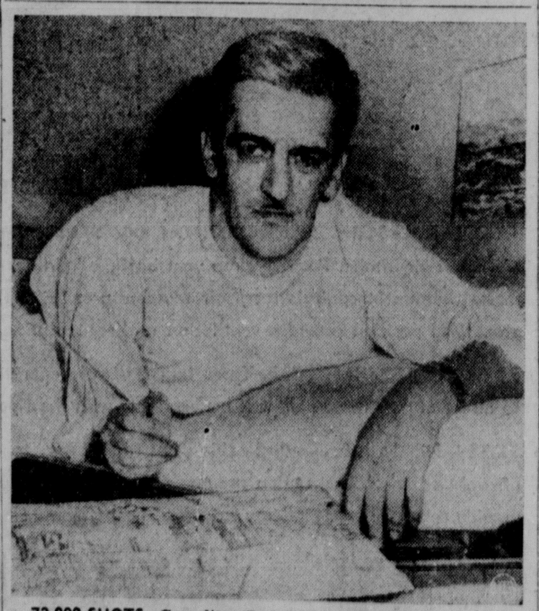

ALL'S QUIET IN AKIYAMA

AKIYAMA, Japan, (AP)— Things were pretty quiet around the Village Council chambers this week. Police reported 15 of the 16 council members are in jail for alleged bribe giving or taking at the April elections.

72,000 SHOTS—Cornelius (Bud) Koster, 38, puts the finishing touches to a water color as he prepares to leave a Chicago hospital he entered 15 years ago. Plan To Combine All U.S. Transportation Alarms McClellan

WASHINGTON (AP)—Sen. McClellan (D-Ark) said Saturday that James R. Hoffa's plan to put all the nation's transportation workers into a single union or federation would create a "super-government."

Hoffa, the 44-year-old heir apparent to Dave Beck as Teamsters Union president, has said all truck, air, rail and shipping unions should be combined into a single union, or federation "for their own protection."

Both McClellan and Sen. Goldwater (R-Ariz) viewed Hoffa's plan with alarm and said it looked like a move to set himself up as the nation's No. 1 labor boss.

"Control the nation's transportation and you control the country," Goldwater said. "There's never been any doubt in my mind that's what Hoffa wants."

McClellan said if the type of transportation union Hoffa has outlined ever comes into being it would wield economic power that "would amount to a super-government."

McClellan is chairman of the Senate Rackets Investigating Committee, on which Goldwater also serves.

The committee has been delving into Hoffa's affairs and particularly his alleged associations with New York labor racketeers. Hoffa recently was acquitted on charges of bribing an investigator on McClellan's committee.

Hoffa is under subpoena to appear before the committee Aug. 13, although the date may be changed.

McClellan said that the committee, when it resumes its hearings Monday afternoon, will look into the case of a "bouncing" union charter.

Robert F. Kennedy, subcommittee counsel, said this was the charter of New York Local 228 of the old United Automobile Workers Union—AFL, adding it had been granted "to a succession of favored individuals."

"We want to see how often it bounced and where it landed," McClellan said.

One of the witnesses called for Monday is Max Chester, former financial secretary of Local 405 of the Retail Clerks Union. Kennedy said Chester was involved in "UAW manipulations" and later moved over to the retail clerks.

Chester, along with labor racketeer Johnny Dio and Samuel Goldstein, president of Teamsters Local 239, was convicted of a $30,000 shakedown conspiracy against two New York electroplating firms.

The three of them are being held without bail, awaiting sentencing, but a judge has ordered them paroled long enough to testify before the Senate Committee.

Dio, also under indictment in the acid blinding of labor columnist Victor Riesel, is expected to testify Thursday.

In hearings on labor-management practices in the New York area the committee already has received evidence that racketeers dominated unions which reaped a study dues money harvest but produced no benefits for union members.

Predict Demos Will Pass Postal Pay Raise Bill

WASHINGTON (AP) — Sen. Carlson (R-Kan) predicted Saturday that Senate Democratic leaders will push through a bill raising pay of the 500,000 postal workers before this session of Congress ends.

He said Republicans expect that such a move will be made in an effort to embarrass President Eisenhower who has announced strong disapproval of the bill.

He told a reporter he was sure it would not become law. However, if it is sent to the White House in time to force the President to veto it before Congress adjourns, there would be an opportunity to try to over ride the veto.

Eisenhower killed federal employe pay bills in his first term, but not until after Congress had quit.

The House already passed, last month by a 379-38 vote, a bill raising the pay of the postal employes $546 a year. The annual cost would be about 280 million dollars.

The Senate Post Office and Civil Service Committee, on which Carlson is senior Republican member, has approved a different measure for the same employes.

It would provide across-the-board adjustments running from $80 to $240 for workers in the bottom seven grades of the postal service. The committee estimates the annual cost of this at 270 million although Carlson said the Post Office Department figures it at 300 million.

CHOU GETS SOVIET PLANE

HONG KONG, (AP) — Red China radio reports Premier Chou En-lai has received a plane from the Soviet Union. It quoted Chou as saying it will be turned over to the government for use by officials and guests "to enable more people to enjoy the friendship of the Soviet government."

Dulles Challenges Soviet Join In Aerial Inspection

WASHINGTON (AP)—Secretary of State Dulles flew back Saturday from disarmament talks in London and promptly challenged Russia to join the West in lessening the danger of a great atomic war by opening vast territories to aerial and ground inspection.

Dulles arrived in midafternoon and went to the White House to give a first-hand report on his London mission to President Eisenhower.

He was able to report to the President, according to information in diplomatic quarters, that he had succeeded in pulling the Western Allies out of a logjam of disagreement on inspection zones. They concurred in a plan he presented to Russia at a meeting of the U.N. Disarmament subcommittee in London Friday.

What he proposed in essence was that Russia agree to aerial and ground inspection over great areas of Europe, North America and the Soviet Union. The object is to preclude the possibility of a massive surprise attack in this atomic age.

In an airport statement Dulles said that, "It is now up to the Soviet Union to respond."

"If the Soviet Union accepts these proposals," he said, "and if the necessary details are worked out, the risk of surprise attack will be greatly diminished.

"And since a major war is not apt to be launched unless the aggressor can count on surprise, the danger of general war will have lessened. Then it will be more possible safely to reduce the burden of armaments."

State Legion Gets Set For Noisy Windup

CHICAGO (AP)—Some 10,000 delegates to the Illinois American Legion's four-day convention got set Saturday night for a noisy weekend windup after electing officers and voting to oppose the United Nations.

Firebells, sirens, firecrackers and World War I songs echoed through the skyscraper canyons of Chicago's downtown Loop district as the Legion ended its business sessions.

Two formal parades were on tap for the weekend. Other impromptu processions temporarily stalled sidewalk traffic in front of Loop Hotels quartering the delegates.

In closing business sessions, the Legionnaires adopted a resolution opposing the UN. They asked that the UN be altered "to eliminate all connection with world government, and if not, that the United States withdraw from it."

The delegates, representing 1,100 Illinois Legion posts, turned down another resolution proposing immediate U. S. withdrawal from the UN.

The newly elected commander, Anthony Badamo, 62, of Quincy, will lead the big Sunday parade closing out the meeting. Beside him will be Al Keller, 33, Kankakee, elected senior vice commander.

Three Children Burn To Death In Fire In Barn

MASON, Wis., (AP) — Three children playing in a hideout in the tons of hay in a barn on the family farm were killed Saturday when fire of undetermined origin destroyed the structure.

The victims were Maynard Baldwin, 5, Judy, 7, and Raymond, 9, children of Mr. and Mrs. Henry Baldwin Sr. The farm is located in Bayfield County in the extreme northern part of Wisconsin.

The parents did not know the children were in the barn. Their bodies were discovered by a member of the Mason fire department only after the fire had burned itself out.

Mr. and Mrs. Baldwin and three of their four other children were in the family home when the father saw smoke and discovered the barn enveloped by flames. The parents thought the victims were berry picking with another son, Willard, 12.

The father said the children often played in the hay.

Tito, Khrushchev Agree On Form Of Cooperation

LONDON (AP)—President Tito of Yugoslavia and Nikita Khrushchev met for two days this week in satellite Romania and agreed on "concrete forms of cooperation," Moscow radio announced Saturday night.

The conference between the Communist party and government leaders of Russia and Yugoslavia took place on Thursday and Friday. Sitting beside Khrushchev were Deputy Premier A. I. Mikoyan and Otto V. Kuusinen, former boss of the disbanded communist International and now a full member of the party presidium. Tito was accompanied by two vice presidents—Edvard Kardelj and Alexander Rankovic—who have spent considerable time in the Soviet Union this summer — on vacation, by official description.

"The two delegations," said the broadcast, "agreed on concrete forms of cooperation between the parties and on the maintaining of constant ties by the exchange of party delegations, mutual information and publications."

Western experts on Communist affairs suggested in London that this meeting would herald the most significant Soviet-Yugoslav accord since Tito's break with Joseph Stalin in 1948, even going beyond the accord worked out two years ago when Khrushchev went to Belgrade to apologize for 1948. The 1955 accord became badly chewed after the Polish and Hungarian rebellions last year.

The Moscow broadcast Saturday said the delegations "discussed a number of questions concerning relations between the U.S.S.R. and Yugoslavia as well as the activities of the two parties and the general interests of socialism and world peace, particularly questions hampering a further development of mutual relations. Return Three Menard Prison Fugitives To Jail; 4th Missing

CHESTER, Ill. (AP)— Two convicts who fled from Menard State Prison here six days ago surrendered Saturday, a third was captured in Alabama, and a search continued for the fourth.

Millard Carlile, 35, of Benton, Ill., and Clarence Newberry, 31, of St. Louis, gave themselves up at the Franklin County jail in Benton. Mrs. Gladys Johnson of near Benton, a sister of Carlile, persuaded them to surrender themselves.

Joe Bill Strange, 26, was captured Friday night by officers in his home town of Albertsville, Ala.

Still at large was Francis M. Murphy, 65, of Terre Haute, Ind., a cripple who couldn't keep up with the others and who Carlile and Newberry said they left behind shortly after the four sawed through bars on a prison dormitory porch and escaped.

Warden Ross Randolph said Newberry and Carlile told different stories about Murphy and that he wasn't satisfied with their accounts.

The three back in custody all would have been up for parole soon but the warden said they would be prosecuted for the escape and face additional terms of one to ten years.

The trio also is charged with interstate transportation of a ve-

Five Airmen End Endurance Test Without Flying

DAYTON, Ohio (AP) — Five Air Force officers Saturday wound up a five-day "endurance flight" without ever having left the ground.

They completed—in a mock airplane cabin—the first of a series of tests to determine ability of airmen to fly for long periods, possibly in atomic planes of the future.

The men, all volunteers, spent 120 hours in a 17-foot by 7-foot by 6-foot cabin at Wright-Patterson Air Force Base during which they engaged in a simulated global mission.

Their radio contacts at various clearance points were the only times they heard an outside voice. Included in the exercise were bombing runs, landings and various "emergencies" including two major unscheduled ones caused by power failure.

The men lived, ate, and worked together as long as 16 hours in a 24-hour day, rotating assignments, all in the interests of science.

The test cabin was designed for maximum comfort. Padded bulkheads and capsules made it unnecessary to wear helmets or parachutes. Each man had a choice of three programs of recorded music piped into the communication system.

British Peer Stirs Up Hornet's Nest By Criticizing Queen, Refuses To Back Down

LONDON (AP)—Lord Altrincham, who describes Queen Elizabeth's speaking style as a "pain in the neck," said Saturday the British monarchy will collapse if people cannot talk about it.

The 33-year-old peer's audacious criticism of Queen Elizabeth II and other members of the royal family came in a magazine article, but he backed it up with a flood of frank comments from his home. London newspapers wheeled up big guns and hit back at him.

Writing in the conservative National and English Review — which he edits — Lord Altrincham pounced on the Queen's speech making.

"The personality conveyed by the utterances which are put into her mouth is that of a priggish schoolgirl, captain of the hockey team, a perfect, and a recent candidate for confirmation," he wrote.

"The relatively classless society of King George V unfortunately is not to be seen in his granddaughters. The Queen and Princess Margaret still bear the debutante's stamp."

Commenting on the Queen's speeches, a Buckingham Palace spokesman said:

"Important speeches by the Queen are usually drafted by the minister concerned. Other speeches are prepared by one of her private secretaries."

Hitting out at the people around the Queen, Lord Altrincham said:

"The Queen's entourage—those who serve her from day to day, who accompany her when she travels and sit with her when she eats—are almost without exception people of the 'tweedy sort.'"

He added that the court had "failed lamentably to move with the times." There was no mention in the article of Prince Philip.

The young peer—who was once fined five pounds—$4—for knocking off a policeman's helmet when he was a student at Oxford—said the Queen should be surrounded by advisors and companions with as many different backgrounds as possible.

Lord Altrincham's magazine had hardly hit the streets when London Newspapers began hitting back at him.

"Lord Altrincham's attack being personal, is vulgar," said Lord Beaverbrook's Daily Express.

In the conservative Daily Telegraph columnist Peterborough wrote:

"I have never heard criticism put with greater exaggeration or more offense."

The League of Empire Loyalists demanded that Lord Altrincham apologize.

A League spokesman said his organization also messaged the director of public prosecutions asking what action he planned to take against the critical peer.

Lord Altrincham didn't spare the Queen Mother either. In blasting the Queen's style at the microphone, he wrote:

"Like her mother, she appears to be unable to string even a few sentences together without a written text—a defect which is particularly regrettable when she can be seen by her audience."

Queen Elizabeth plans to speak to a television audience for the first time this coming Christmas.

Lord Altrincham said palace officials defend the Queen's reading from prepared speeches as a safe-

Dead For This Session, Martin Says

WASHINGTON (AP)—President Eisenhower was reported adamant Saturday against the Senate's revamped civil rights bill, and Rep. Joseph W. Martin Jr., House GOP leader, pronounced civil rights legislation "dead for this session" of Congress.

Three top administration officials, who cannot be named, said in interviews that Eisenhower regards the Senate version of the bill as completely unworkable. He was said to be throwing his weight solidly against House acceptance of it.

Martin told a reporter: "The bill is not acceptable to us, and I don't think it's acceptable to a majority of the House."

Forsees Deadlock

He foresaw a probable deadlock which would put the issue over to next year.

The three administration leaders agreed that, as the matter stands, Eisenhower would rather have no bill at all than to accept the Senate's insertion of the jury trial amendment in a measure which it already had stripped of authority to enforce civil rights in general.

Some House Democratic leaders voiced the opinion privately that the Republicans "don't want a civil rights bill this year." They contended the Eisenhower administration is stalling and hoping to carry the issue over into the 1958 election year.

'Democratic Bill'

Martin called the Senate bill in its present form a Democratic bill and declared, "We won't take it in the form it is likely to come out of the Senate."

In foreseeing a possible deadlock over efforts to compromise differences between the Senate version and the more sweeping, administration-sponsored bill passed by the House, Martin said: "It looks to me as though this bill is dead for this session. That will put the whole civil rights fight over until next January when Congress reconvenes."

'Empty Shell'

The chief executive's legal advisors are said to have told Eisenhower the measure the Senate may pass by midweek represents not only an "empty shell" for protection of voting rights but will

FIRE DEMOCRATIC PARTY WORKER ON KICKBACK CHARGE

CHICAGO (AP)—One of two Democratic Party workers accused of taking pay kickbacks from city garbage collectors has been fired from his $6,800 a year job with the Board of Health.

Dr. Herman N. Bundesen, board president, said Saturday he had ordered the dismissal of Steve Ginakos, 52, a precinct captain, as an assistant dairy inspector.

Bundesen made the disclosure as Mayor Richard J. Daley ordered a complete investigation of alleged shakedowns of temporary city employes.

Ginakos is accused of collecting kickbacks from two garbage collectors in return for assurances that he would keep them on the payroll. He is free on $1,000 bond on two confidence game charges.

Louis Winetroub, 62, is another Democratic precinct captain similarly charged in connection with the alleged receipts of kickbacks from an immigrant worker in the city's sanitation department. Winetroub has since been suspended as a municipal court bailiff.

Lt. Hal Olson Appointed Admiral's Aid And PIO

SAN FRANCISCO, Calif. — The Twelfth Coast Guard District has announced the appointment of Lieutenant Hal Floyd Olson, USCG, to the dual role of Public Information Officer for the three-state district, and Personal Aide to Rear Admiral Russell E. Wood, USCG, who commands it.

Lieutenant Olson is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Irving Olson of 820 West College avenue, Jacksonville, Ill. At Jacksonville High School, he was outstanding in track, and upon graduation in 1948 attended Illinois College for one year. During that year, he competed successfully in the annual nationwide examination for admission to the U.S. Coast Guard Academy at New London, Conn., which he entered in the summer of 1949 as a cadet.

At the Academy, Lieutenant Olson continued to star in track, captaining the team in 1952. He graduated in 1953 with the degree of Bachelor of Science and a commission as Ensign.

Served On Icebreaker

His first assignment was to the Coast Guard icebreaker Northwind, operating from Seattle, Washington. Next, he was assistant Chief of Communications in the offices of the 13th District, where he advanced to the rank of Lieutenant (jg). In October 1954, he returned to sea as Damage Control Officer and Engineer Trainee on board the Coast Guard Cutter Wachusett, which performed search and rescue duties and weather patrol of Pacific ocean stations.

Then, in July 1955, he was assigned his first command, of the USCG Patrol Boat 95311, which based at Alameda, Calif. The CG-95311 patrolled the entrance to San Francisco harbor beyond the Golden Gate Bridge. Identifying inbound vessels, and preventing the entry of unauthorized ones, it contributed to the security of the port, and additionally performed search and rescue duties.

Becomes Full Lieutenant

Advanced to full Lieutenant last July 1, he was detached from the patrol vessel and reassigned to the 12th District Office in his present two key posts.

Lieutenant Olson on 15 June married the former Sheila Ann Tomlinson of San Francisco in a military ceremony at the Treasure Island Naval Base. They have established a San Francisco residence at 3828 Anza street.

Lieutenant Olson wears the Naval Science Service Medal and also the Expert Pistolman. His father is a botanist, and his mother the former Lona Floyd of Greenville, Ill. He has a younger brother, David, who is a senior at Illinois State Normal, and a sister, Carmen, a junior at Kalamazoo College in Michigan.

THE STORY: Marshal Harney Blanchard doesn't have much time to rescue Pete Dorsey, his prisoner who was kidnaped in Blue Springs. Pete may be lynched by the Clements for being a coward, which resulted in the death of Barney Jethroe. Now Cole Jethroe, Barney's brother, is in town, and there is nothing to delay the lynching. Pike Ambrose has set out to follow a man who may know where Dorsey is held.

THE noise of horses moving on the trail came closer. Then I saw gray spots moving through the dark and I knew it was Birch's pinto leading the way down the ravine. I held Pilot's nose to keep him quiet. Then I saw the shape of a man on the pinto and the trailing pack horse. I edged away from the bushes as the pinto came below me on the trail.

"Hold up, Birch," I said, surprised how loud my voice came off the slopes.

I heard him grab a breath. I moved up fast before he got a notion to run and the pinto jumped aside when I brushed his shoulder. I grabbed his bridle and stuck my rifle up into Birch's face.

"What—?"

It wasn't Birch. It was Carl Rambeau, one of the Clements' cooks. "Get down, Carl," I said.

Carl got down and edged near, trying to pick out my face. I tipped my head away. No need to tell him who it was. More than likely he'd find out soon enough.

"You take me to the cave where Dorsey is," I said, trying to sound all business.

"What cave? Who are you?"

I nudged his belly with the rifle. It was a mistake. I saw his shoulders hunch when he made his grab. I saw it just early enough to pull the rifle aside. I felt his hand hit and slide off the barrel. I ducked and his fist hit the top of my head and knocked my hat off. I heard the horses start and one of them brushed against me. Rambeau's weight hung on me and I couldn't get my arms loose. In close under him, I swung the rifle hard. I heard the solid smack of the barrel against the side of his head. He dropped like a stone.

I stood over him, sucking air, my heart stomping against my ribs. Then I heard horses running on the trail below. I jerked around. The pinto and pack horse were gone.

I knew I might need one of those horses but there was nothing to do about it. I waited for Rambeau to come alive.

• • •

I WALKED around in the dark until I found my hat. I went to Rambeau to check him for guns. He had a .45 in his belt. I pulled it and threw it up the slope. I fanned Rambeau's face with my hat, trying to bring him around. Leaning over him, I saw the blood on his head. I'd hit him as hard as I could, I remembered, and it worried me. But finally he stirred and opened his mouth. Then his eyes came open and his hand moved to his face. He felt the blood and sat up fast. I held the rifle down where he could get a good look but not so close he could grab again. But I knew I didn't have guts to shoot him if he went for it.

I said, "Take me to the cave."

Rambeau stood up and rubbed at his face with his bandanna. I could see he was scared and I liked that. I didn't care much whether he was scared of me or of what the Clements would do when they found out. Something pressed into the middle of my back and I jumped about a foot off the ground and then I saw it was only Pilot, dragging his reins.

"Get going," I said. Rambeau turned and started up the trail. I stayed right close, leading Pilot. I thought about what was coming and made up my mind. "Listen, Carl. At the cave, you call Birch, get him out. Anybody else, you get them out, too."

Rambeau turned halfway to me and didn't say anything. It looked to me like he would do it. I nudged his back with the rifle barrel just to remind him and then I pulled away before he got another notion. We moved up the trail and Rambeau stopped at about the place I thought he would. He looked at me and pointed to the cave, just a thick black mark on the slope 30 feet up.

I whispered, "Sing out."

Rambeau waited. I nudged him with the rifle. He called, "Birch, come out. This is Carl. Come out here!"

Then a man stepped out of the cave.

I said, "Down here to the trail, Birch. Drop your gun and come down. Make a wrong move . . . I'll kill you."

• • •

FOR a minute, Birch just stood. Then he started down. He said, "Gun's in the cave." His voice was sad and tired. He didn't seem surprised at all. Down on the trail, he looked hard at me and then at Rambeau. He said, "What happened, Carl?"

"Caught me down the ravine," Carl said.

Birch turned back to me. "Might as well shoot. Our hides ain't worth a sack of chips now."

I kept my eyes and the rifle on them. I called, "Pete! Pete Dorsey! You come out and I'll take you to town."

Nothing happened. I said, "He tied?"

Birch nodded. I called, "Pete! Come out! It's safe!"

I didn't know what else to do. I didn't want to leave Birch and Carl. I couldn't send either of them back up on account of that gun in there. If we all went, they might jump me in the cave. It made me sick to think I'd got this far and had to stop.

To Show Top-Secret Missile At Springfield

The U.S. Army's first supersonic anti-aircraft guided missile, named NIKE-AJAX (pronounced NIGH'-key) after the winged goddess of victory of Greek mythology, will be displayed in Springfield at the Illinois State Fair, August 9-18.

The U.S. Army exhibit unit, Alexandria, Va., announced yesterday that negotiations with fair officials had been completed to have the large display moved in, with Army information specialists on hand to provide information concerning the missile and its operation.

The display will consist of an actual NIKE-AJAX missile in an immobile position, and an animated scale model of a NIKE launching site similar to those now deployed around the country. In addition, there will be a five minute motion picture, running continuously in the exhibit booth, depicting the history and development of rockets.

10 Years Of Research

NIKE is the end product of more than 10 years research, development, and engineering in the guided missile field. The Army launched the NIKE program in 1945 and test firings were held in 1946. The U.S. Army developed NIKE became the nation's first supersonic guided missile designed to intercept and destroy enemy aircraft, regardless of evasive action.

The Army's NIKE guided missile installations are deployed throughout the United States and form an inner-ring of defense for industrial, heavily-populated and strategic areas. NIKE is the nation's number one weapon against enemy air attack.

The speed, range and altitude of the NIKE is closely guarded information, but its kill potential has far exceeded expectations. Research work continues to improve its almost fantastic capabilities. A second member of the NIKE family, the NIKE-HERCULES, is now operational in many localities. It is faster, flies higher and has greater range than the AJAX version. Carrying an atomic warhead, the NIKE-HERCULES is designed to destroy complete bomber formations. It also has an anti-missile capability.

For low-altitude attack, NIKE sites are being supplemented with the recently announced U.S. Army HAWK, a new missile of deadly accuracy designed to intercept and destroy low flyers who might attempt sneak attacks in the "blind zone" of conventional radars.

Both the NIKE and HAWK missiles are explained in the U.S. Army exhibit.

There is no charge for admission.

John Collins Honored For Farm Safety Work

ASHLAND—John R. Collins of Ashland has received an unusual award for his service to safety. This award for meritorious service is the highest award made to an individual by the National Safety Council.

The award was appropriately presented to Collins during National Farm Safety week. He is one of a very few individuals in Illinois who have received this recognition. It was the only top award of its type presented by the farm division of the National Safety council to anyone in the United States in the past year.

Collins has actively promoted safety since 1949, when a corn picker accident caused him to lose both legs and an arm. He has appeared on both radio and television, and has on many occasions been an effective speaker to rural groups. His fine work with Future Farmers of America (FFA) chapters in Central Illinois, led to his recommendation for this honor by the Illinois Association FFA.

Besides personal appearances in '56, Collins made a series of tape recordings with V. E. Burgener, president of the Illinois Rural Safety Council for use in local community group meetings. These were used during the past corn harvest season primarily in Illinois, and in 1957 will be distributed through a 10-state area.

Just last week, Collins was an effective participant in two Rural Safety Field days held at DeKalb and Salem.

Ashland Centennial

The Ashland Centennial association has a balance of $2,863.97 in its treasury, as of Wednesday, it was announced by the association's treasurer, Leo Fitzgerald. The total receipts from Nov. 1, 1956 to August 1, 1957 amounted to $11,453.95 and the disbursements for the same period amounted to $8,589.98.

The treasurer stated that the actual amount of profit to be realized from Centennial activities could not be determined for several days as additional revenue is expected and will be received from some of the income-producing projects such as the Centennial book sale, sale of electrical equipment used in the pageant and some unsold souvenirs. He also mentioned that unpaid obligations may run as high as $450.00.

A detailed report showing receipts, expenses and profit derived from the various activities will be published as soon as possible.

Which reminds me that there are just a few days left to bring your children in for the contest. August 10 is positively the last day. Appointment are needed in the mornings but you can come in any afternoon between 1:30 and 5 p.m. without one.

Bill also sent six prints to the Missouri Convention held just a week earlier. All six were accepted and he won first place in portraiture of men and again for portraiture of women. I am proud of my husband and his photographic ability. Competing with the finest in the country his prints are always right up on top of the heap.

We have had more entries than ever before into our BABY CONTEST and we still have the big final week to go. WON'T YOU PLAN TO COME IN AND TAKE ADVANTAGE OF THIS WONDERFUL OPPORTUNITY. Your child just might be the winner of the $100 U.S. Bond or of one of the many other valuable gifts. REMEMBER?

Gov. And Mrs. Stratton At Horse Show

Governor and Mrs. William G. Stratton came unannounced to the Morgan County Junior Fair Friday and stayed for the evening horse show.

The governor said that he was mighty happy that his work schedule "had changed itself," giving him time to come over.

He also told Fair President Milton Birdsell that Morgan had a fine fair and that the horse show "is one of the best, maybe the very best, that I have seen at a county fair."

The photo above shows the governor turning a husbandly ear to his wife as Birdsell joyously smiles while the ladies five gaited saddle horse class lined up for the close appraisal of Judge Dick Hadley of Oklahoma City.

Birdsell was looking at Miss Sandra Stratton, the governor's daughter, aboard Royal Man, shown in the second picture.

Royal Man is a veteran of many horse shows. He's 14 years old now, far above the average age of a five gaited horse. Some of the fine harness horses don't hit their peak before 14 years, but the five gaited horses usually feel the strain and are retired before this age.

But Royal Man can still do it with apparent ease, switching from the trot to the rack and to the gallop without too much trouble.

The judge, however, had only five ribbons to place Friday evening and he passed by Royal Man.

The fair board had entertained high hopes that Gov. Stratton would be over to the fair as soon as they learned that Miss Stratton had entered Royal Man in the show. Their hopes diminished soon, however, when the governor's aides declared that his schedule would not permit him to attend. The management was doubly pleased, though, when the governor managed to get away from his office and come over for the fair.

Pittsfield Golfers Start $40,000 Drive

PITTSFIELD— This community's campaign for a golf course of its own is now in progress, with 30 subscriptions of $200 each having already been made.

Richard Niebur, temporary treasurer of the Pike County Development Association, said the kick-off meeting at the Legion Hall on Monday night of this week was an encouraging start to the goal of $40,000 which will require 200 subscriptions.

A number of Pittsfield residents now hold membership in clubs at Jacksonville, Quincy, and other cities in this area.

A large corps of solicitors is working this week to contact prospective members.

About 110 people attended the meeting and heard the project outlined by members of the committee. After the meeting those present were invited to sign subscription agreements and pay the pledge of $200 each.

Once the initial financing is provided, annual dues will be established, probably about $70 per year for each family membership.

The $40,000 cost is divided as follows: $5,000 down payment on purchases of 83 acres from Ralph Newman (price is $25,000), $15,000 for greens and fairways, $4,000 for equipment, $1,000 for enlarging lake from two to three million gallon capacity, $15,000 for remodeling and equipping a clubhouse.

The proposed site is the former location of Foreman orchards east of Pittsfield on highway 36-54. Included in the 83 acres is a modern residence and a large substantial barn which would be converted into the clubhouse.

Newman has offered to budget the purchase of land over a 25 year period, with unpaid balance paying five percent.

Clarence Marshall presided at the meeting. Don Sloan presented the details of the proposal and other remarks were made by K. C. Barber, Dick Niebur and Lewis Grigsby.

EXIT FIGHTING FRENCH—The last elements of France's major combat force in Tunisia are being removed to Algeria, where France has been fighting a long guerrilla war with Algerian rebels. The removal of the 12,000-man force resulted from a clash two months ago between French and Tunisian troops near the Algerian frontier. However, France is leaving a like number of troops, mostly in supply service, in Tunisia. Tunisian security will fall on its own army, which has a nucleus of 3,000 men. The French say Tunisia, which recently deposed its monarch and voted for a republic, is a center of arms traffic to Algeria.

Sharkey Austin Under Mental Observation

NASHVILLE, Tenn. (AP)—Joseph Elmer (Sharkey) Austin, 59, of Quincy, Ill., was committed to Central State hospital Friday for observation prior to trial on a kidnaping charge.

U. S. Dist Judge William E. Miller ordered him sent to the mental institution after government attorneys said there was reason to believe Austin might not be mentally capable of advising with counsel.

Austin was one of three persons arrested at Ashland City, Tenn., April 19 and charged with kidnaping V. J. McCormick, a Guthrie, Ky., motel clerk the day before.

The other two arrested were John George Scroggins, 38, also of Quincy, and Dorris Calvin Meacham, 18, Elkton, Ky. All three pleaded innocent at arraignment here May 7.

Meacham is serving a jail sentence in nearby Springfield for housebreaking and larceny. Scroggins is in jail here awaiting trial.

No trial date has been set, but court officials have indicated it probably would be held in October.

Joseph Elmer (Sharkey) Austin, former Morgan county man now held in Tennessee on a kidnaping charge, served 25 years in the Southern Illinois penitentiary on a murder charge before his release seven years ago.

Austin was convicted in 1925, together with Alva Grimmett, for the holdup murder of William Steele at Nortonville.

Grimmett stood trial, was convicted, and was hanged. Austin pleaded guilty and was sent to the penitentiary.

Since his release from prison he has been residing at Quincy. His earlier home was in the south section of Morgan county.

Illinois authorities have placed a detainer with the Tennessee officials charging Austin and Scroggins with parole violation.

Storm Ends First 4-H Stock Sale

The first annual 4-H auction of prize winning livestock was going along in high gear Saturday afternoon when the first rain squall struck. The men held onto the tent and kept it at home. But most of the prospective buyers decided to go home.

A few minutes later Storm No. 2 came along, a fierce squall with torrential rain. This time the top of the tent blew away and the sale was over.

She's the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Alfred Rahe of Chapin and a member of the Victory Ag club.

She declined to sell the reserve champion.

The other two reserve champions were sold.

The Dunlap hotel bought the Hereford reserve, a 910 pound steer owned by Sherrie Houston, for 30c a pound. Harold McDevitt of Franklin bought Patsy Schall's 985 pound Shorthorn reserve for 27c a pound.

Roger Houston, owner of the Hereford reserve champion, is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Robert Houston of Jacksonville and belongs to the Northside 4-H club. David Lakamp, owner of the Shorthorn reserve, is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Clarence Lakamp of Chapin and he belongs to the Victory Ag club.

Cattle Judge Ill

The beef cattle show got off to a slow start Saturday morning.

Tex Spitzer, the judge, of Pleasant Plains called to say that he was too ill to officiate. His uncle by marriage, Paul F. Tolan of Pleasant Plains, agreed to come over and while he was driving to the fairgrounds five bull calf classes were judged by Robert Shekelton of Waverly and Joe Wallbaum of Jacksonville.

Tolan said that Spitzer is building a new house and that "he's just worn out from overwork and the heat—nothing serious."

GORMAN BEAT INDIANS FOR TOP THRILL

KANSAS CITY (AP)—Tom Gorman, star relief pitcher with the Kansas City Athletics, says his big mound thrill came in 1952 when he was pitching for the New York Yankees and they beat the Cleveland Indians.

Says Gorman: "I entered the game with the bases filled and leading 3-2. I fanned a man, the next batter grounded out to send in the tieing run, and I fanned the third batter. I then pitched the eighth and ninth and we won. It was my first victory in the majors."

A TOUGH PILL TO SWALLOW

DENVER, Colo. (AP)—Manager Ralph Houk of the American Assn. Denver Bears beamed at outfielder George Wilson's exhibition of hitting. Wilson was hitting some long, hard smashes.

A long one by Wilson disappeared behind the right field wall. Later, Houk went to his automobile—behind the right field wall—and found one of Wilson's long ones had smashed his windshield.

To make matters worse, the ball which did the damage sailed over the fence during batting practice—not during a game.

Everyone is eligible to register at the Journal Courier booth in the merchants' exposition tent. However, people residing within city limits of Jacksonville and in town limits of neighboring towns where our newspaperboys make regular daily delivery are required to fill in the name and address of a relative or friend living in a rural area or any states elsewhere in the U. S., to whom they wish to have The Journal mailed.

The reason for this is that postal laws prohibit mailing copies in Jacksonville proper under bulk second class mailing permits. In neighboring towns where newspaperboys make regular delivery the Journal does not accept new mail subscriptions in fairness to Journal carriers.

Five Killed As Cars Collide In Storm Near Boody

BOODY, Ill. (AP)—A former University of Illinois football captain and four other persons including his wife were killed Saturday night in a two-car crash during a rainstorm near Boody. Three others were critically injured.

Dead were Mac Wenskunas, center and captain for Illinois' 1946 Rose Bowl team; his wife Francis; the couple's next door neighbors in nearby Decatur, Mr. and Mrs. Charles G. Whit and Harry Tanner, 42, of Decatur.

The two couples were riding in one car and Tanner in the other.

Critically injured in the car with Tanner were Stan Poland, 25, Harold A. Davis, both of Decatur, and Ray Thevenot, 35, of Oakley. All were members of a sandlot softball team returning from a tourney at nearby Blue Mound.

Wenskunas, a salesman, was recovering from injuries he suffered about a year ago in a two-car crash near Cedar Rapids, Iowa.

Find Mother, Two Children Hacked To Death In Home

BRENTWOOD, N. Y. (AP) — A young mother and her two small children were found hacked to death in their small ranch house home in this Long Island community Saturday.

They were Mrs. Margaret Patricia Skiffington, 30; her daughter Maurine, and son, Robert Jr., 5.

The children's bodies were found in the bathtub. The throat of one had been slashed. The other had been stabbed in the back.

The mother's body lay on the floor of a bedroom. She had been stabbed five times in the chest. Police said her injuries made suicide look improbable.

A neighbor, who was not identified, found the bodies about mid-afternoon on a visit to the home.

A nine inch knife found at the scene and believed to have been used in the killings was being checked for fingerprints.

Police said the husband works as a cook in a Brooklyn hospital. They said he roomed in Brooklyn and went to his home only on weekends. He has not been located, but police said they did not regard him as suspect.

Pete Riggs Will Hold Revival At Roodhouse

ROODHOUSE—Evangelist Pete Riggs, the 39-year-old minister of Los Angeles, Calif., will speak at the Emmanuel Baptist church in a week's evangelistic campaign, beginning Aug. 12 through Aug. 18. Services will begin at 8 p.m. each evening.

While attending the World Congress on Evangelism in Brussels, Belgium, and preaching in other countries in Europe, he saw communism working first-hand with rioting and bloodshed in open defiance to God. Dr. Riggs has been a featured speaker, along with other leading evangelists, for the last few years, at the world's largest Bible conference at Winona Lake, Ind.

Dr. Riggs, in his university preparation, majored in religious education. He was appointed to the position of assistant to the president while still a student and was sent to Europe on one occasion as a representative of the school.

Riggs served in the Air Corps during World War II and is a versatile athlete. Dr. Riggs was born in Jacksonville, and lived his early life in the Jacksonville vicinity. He will arrive at Lambert Airport in St. Louis, Monday, Aug. 12 where he will be met by the pastor of the church here, Rev. Ollie Phillips.

Assisting with the evangelistic meetings at the local Emmanuel Baptist church will be Rev. Gerald Ray Phillips, Excelsior Springs, Mo. who will serve as pianist, and Rev. Ray Shelton Faucett, Mo., who will lead the singing each evening. The public is invited to attend these meetings.

PADDLING IN ORDER

CHICAGO (AP) — A three-year-old boy beat the heat despite his mother's warnings and went swimming in Lake Michigan before the life guard came on duty today.

But Timmy Griesdorf said he didn't disobey his mother's injunction against swimming, and told police:

"I don't swim. I just lie on my stomach and paddle."

Two policemen ordered the boy out of the water and took him home after a passer-by reported that Timmy was swimming in water deep enough to go "over a grown man's head."

WINTER STEPPINGSTONE

MIAMI (AP)—Iron Liege's Kentucky Derby victory was the 11th in recent years for horses developed during the winter at Hialeah. Nine of the 10 starters in the 1957 Run-for-the-Roses saw action at Hialeah.

Sheriff Of Cameron, Hard Hit By Hurricane, Urges Survivors Return, Help Rebuild Town

CAMERON, La. (AP) — A month ago Saturday Hurricane Audrey whirled out of the Gulf of Mexico, bringing a dawn of death along 70 miles of isolated coastline.

The dead and tears are gone; the heartache and wreckage remain.

With the health problem cleared up, Sheriff O. B. Carter urged survivors living elsewhere to come back and help the quickening struggle toward a new life.

"It's a big, big, job," he sighed.

Hurricane Audrey thundered inland over low marshlands, sweeping to death hundreds of men, women and children in a savage hell of tidal water and shrieking wind. The toll of dead and missing has climbed above 530.

The first trickle of tent shelters has appeared—the first promise of rebuilding.

Although civil defense crews are still reducing the rubble, trucks laden with timber, roofing and freshly creosoted power poles are replacing the earlier rush of medical supplies, food and blankets.

Cars are bringing the first families back to Cameron. Some families are staying here, others are commuting daily between Cameron and Lake Charles, 30 miles inland, to man mops and scrubbing brushes.

Starting next week, Sheriff Carter said, the wallboard-and-tent shelters provided by the Federal Housing Administration will grow at the rate of 20 or 30 a day. In less than a month, he expects 600 to 800 spread across lower Cameron Parish. The Red Cross is shipping in all furnishings.

"It's been a month since this tragedy hit us," Carter said. "Now it's up to the men to realize the emergency is over. We've got to do everything we can to assist ourselves if we expect more assistance from outside."

A coastal town of some 3,000 before Audrey, Cameron was the center of destruction. Some closely clustered homes, however, escaped major damage.

Ten miles westward at Holly Beach, the townsite was wiped out and no one has ventured back.

From Cameron eastward 15 miles along the coastal road to Creole, and onward to Grand Chenier, a few skeleton houses stand. Most houses have vanished, leaving only bare foundations.

The white-haired sheriff, who directed the grim task of rescue in the first days of shock, glanced out his courthouse window and murmured. "They know it will take a long time to get back to normal. They may joke a little now, but not much. It will take a long time for them to recover emotionally."

"Every day a resident stays away now is a day lost in rebuilding," he said. "Some of the survivors are letting time slip by. We must rebuild. We can't live in tents next winter."

CARGO SAVES TRUCK

BICKLEIGH, England (AP) — A truck carrying a load of bottled beer caught fire on a lonely country road near here this week. Driver Bill Matthews told his boss he did the best he could. He saved the truck but had to pour the beer on the fire to do it, he said.

PRINCETON CHOICE

NEW HAVEN, Conn. (AP) — Princeton is a strong favorite to win the 1957 Ivy League football title, at least among the league's sports publicists.

Five of the eight directors of sports information picked the Tigers to win the crown while the other three figured them for second in a recent poll. Pennsylvania (2) and Yale (1) were the other choices.

The hurricane scene is open five days a week and sightseers are so frequent the crush forces roadblocks on weekends.

Dr. Cecil Clark, the doctor-hero who worked tirelessly despite the agony of losing three children, plans to reopen his little Cameron clinic the second week in August.

"The majority of people will be back," he said. "Most of them have had families here for generations. They have no thought of going elsewhere."

An emergency power plant is generating a pulse of activity. New power poles have been tumbled along the highway, waiting to be placed in service.

Many of the family heads are patiently waiting for Red Cross funds to help rebuild. There are hundreds of applications. And insurance adjusters work ceaselessly.

The Salvation Army has a clothing shelter hastily built of salvaged lumber. Next to it the volunteers are constructing two new sheds, first new structures in town.

Women often entered the clothing shelter during the first weeks in tattered rags. M. Clark Garrison, the supervising officer, was puzzled because the first articles many picked up were hats.

"They simply said they had to have them to go to church," he said. Most older residents are French-speaking Roman Catholics.

In a tiny rear compartment, women workers helped tape-measure customers, gave them fresh underclothing, sheets, towels and pillowcases.

The Red Cross has two large tent kitchens at Cameron and Creole, feeding hundreds of workers and cleanup families in swiftly moving lines.

While Cameron comes to life, Carter's few deputies are everywhere, helping break the inevitable bottlenecks.

Deputy T. P. Vincent, first Cameron officer to reach the outside world and tell what happened, lost his wife, mother and brother.

"Where else would I go now?" he asked. "My friends are here. I'll stay and die in Cameron."

Some civil defense workers came up to warn of pilfering in his dead brother's wrecked shoe store. Vincent ran to the scene, seized two white youths and a Negro boy and thrust them in jail. He returned, arrested a Negro man with a cardboard box of shoes, made him carry the shoes to jail with him.

"It happens all the time," Vincent growled, shaking with rage.

The Rev. Taylor Wall, pastor of the Wakefield Memorial Methodist Church, paused at his task of stripping the ceiling of his battered wooden church.

Wiping the sweat from his face he said a new church would be built on the spot, but with concrete blocks. "They seem to have held in the storm," he said. Thirty-five persons saved their lives in his wooden structure.

The minister said two concrete vaults in back of his church prevented the swaying structure from washing away.

He hopes to begin services in two to three months. Overall-clad workers from Lake Charles churches and other volunteers were here to help him tear down the building.

"The people will return," he predicted without hesitation. "It's too crowded for their liking in the cities."

Near Creole, cattleman James Meaux, 56, sat sipping from a water jug while his husky son John, a 23-year-old Marine, ripped wooden shingles from their tangled roof. The son is on emergency leave from Camp Pendleton, Calif.

"I hope Uncle Sam will let me keep him a lot longer," Meaux commented. The farmer and his wife rode out the storm in their attic. His ancient house with old-fashioned heavy timbers held against the water. On each side, neighbors died.

Meaux is tearing down his damaged house in order to rebuild.

"We'll stay around," he said, a smile cracking his leathery face. "We like the cool Gulf breeze. Those people up in Lake Charles waiting to come back — why, they're smothering. They can't stand the city heat.

"If they went anywhere else, they'd find tornadoes or floods. My mother died in this house in 1935 when she was 87. She never told of a storm like this. If our new home stands as long as this one did—that's good enough."

Allocate $500,000 For Flood Relief In Illinois

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Eisenhower today allocated $1,370,000 for flood and tornado relief in Missouri, Illinois and North Dakota.

New York Police Combat Wave Of Juvenile Killings

NEW YORK (AP)—Police Saturday stepped up a special drive to wipe out a wave of juvenile terrorism marked by three killings—and indirectly a fourth death—in this city in scarcely a week.

George Marshall, 18, a Bronx Negro, was stabbed to death by fellow teen-agers Friday night a few hours after police started the special campaign.

Acting Police Commissioner James R. Kennedy only Friday had ordered the full 23,000-man police force into a weekend drive as a result of the earlier killings.

Detective squads were reshuffled into potentially dangerous areas with orders to "stop, search and disperse any groups of teenagers found loitering suspicuously."

The slayings occurred in various sections of the city and none appeared related to the other.

Albert was playing alone, police said. His brother William, 8, found the body and sounded the alarm. The boy had nearly hanged himself six months ago playing the same game. That time he was "hanging a badman."

Rankin, 59, has been envoy to the Chiang Kai-shek government in Taipei, Formosa, for nearly seven years. He became ambassador in 1953. The new track holder, a six-year-old, broke Iosola Guy's 2:08 mark set last year. Iosola Guy was a three-year-old.

FLOUR BUYING PUSHES WHEAT FUTURES HIGHER

CHICAGO, (AP) — After waiting weeks in hopes of lower prices, the nation's bakers commenced buying flour requirements this this week and as a result wheat futures advanced to higher ground.

Corn rallied Thursday after declining the eight previous trading sessions but wound up the week lower. Rye ended more than six cents above the close a week ago Friday, while soybeans scored gains of more than three cents. Oats finished mostly higher.

New crop wheat closed the week 1⅛ to 4 cents higher than a week ago. Corn was off ¾ to 2⅝, oats ⅜ lower to ⅝ higher, rye 5½ to 6¼ up, soybeans ¾ to 3¼ higher and lard was 17 to 25 cents a hundred pounds lower.

The upturn in wheat futures began Wednesday when flour buying became apparent and millers moved into the futures market for purchases against sales.

A private crop estimate came out Friday but had little effect on prices since it differed only slightly from a government estimate made July 1.

The production estimate by C. M. Galvin of Francis I Dupont & Co. forecast a wheat crop of 921,000,000 bushels, about 19,000,000 less than the government estimated July 1.

Galvin's estimate of corn production at 3,082,000,000 bushels was about 70,000,000 more than the agriculture department forecast. His estimate of soybeans at 442,000,000 bushels was in line with trade expectations.

New York Stock Market

NEW YORK (AP)—Stock market values slipped this week but light trading robbed the move of any emphasis.

Daily turnover dwindled to an average of 1,754,536 shares, lowest since the week ended March 30.

It was a waiting market—waiting for something to move in decisively one way or the other. A vacation mood prevailed on Wall Street. At times, moderate offering combined with slight buying interest were enough to cut prices disproportionately.

These were summer doldrums. In the absence of major news, no definite trend was established. So caution was the watchword. The question of whether to buy or sell was moot. The public hugged the sidelines. This left most of the business in the hands of professionals.

Fluttering attempt at a rebound Tuesday and Wednesday did nothing better than leave the market mixed with a slight upside edge. Prices continued to wilt on Thursday as turnover melted away. Trading interest slackened even further on Friday and it looked as if the market would post another loss; but a late rally by rails put key stocks slightly ahead. Meanwhile, the number of issues traded fell off to the smallest number since March 22.

The Associated Press average of 60 stocks declined $2.70 on the week to $184.70.

The five most active issues this week on the New York stock exchange were:

Bethlehem Steel, off 1 at 47⅜ on 109,300 shares; Raytheon, up 1⅛ at 22½; General Motors, off 1⅛ at 44⅜; Chrysler, off ⅝ at 78; and Loew's, up ¼ at 18¼.

Rain And Wind Strike Glasgow Area Saturday

GLASGOW—A wind storm that reached tornadic proportions followed by rainfall of approximately two and one-half inches struck the Glasgow community at 3:30 p.m. Saturday.

Another large tree in the village section was torn out by the roots, and numerous other trees about the village suffered loss of limbs. Falling limbs caused electric service to be interrupted in the homes of Miss Nell Price, William Cunningham and G. E. Cowper when the wires were pulled from the houses.

Ike Calls Civil Rights Bill Unacceptable

hamstring government enforcement in other fields.

Southern senators held a strategy session on the bill Saturday and Sen. Russell (D-Ga) told reporters afterward that he expects a Senate vote "within a reasonable time," perhaps Wednesday or even sooner.

"Up to now there has been no filibuster on this bill," Russell said. "None was planned at our session."

Compromise Hope

Sen. Knowland (R - Calif), who breakfasted with Eisenhower, told reporters he hopes the House will send the measure to a Senate-House conference committee in an effort to compromise its terms.

Knowland, the Senate Republican leader, did not rule out some compromise on the controversial jury trial amendment which he previously had said made the measure "ineffective." But he said he has yet to see any compromise he finds acceptable.

Johnson Approves

Sen. Lyndon B. Johnson of Texas, the Democratic leader, made it clear he hopes the House accepts the Senate version without a conference and lays the bill on Eisenhower's desk.

In a move that stunned administration leaders, the Senate wrote into the bill by a 51-42 vote early Friday a provision requiring jury trials in all federal court criminal contempt cases.

Criminal contempt is generally defined as an action in which a judge desires to punish a defendant for wilfull disobedience of court orders. There would be no jury trials where a judge sought only to induce obedience by means of civil contempt citations and where the defendant could go free as soon as he complied.

Eisenhower said the jury trial provision would "make largely ineffective the basic purpose of the bill — that of protecting promptly and effectively every American in his right to vote."

"During the talks the two sides confirmed their agreement to work for a further all-round development of relations and for the removal of obstacles hindering this development."

This left little doubt that obstacles still exist between the two Communist countries.

The presence of Kuusinen — an old hand at spreading world communism — suggest to some Western students that another comintern or cominform might be in the making.

"It was emphasized that particular importance attaches to the strengthening in every way of the unity and fraternal cooperation of the Communist and worker parties and the peoples of all the socialist countries and of peace-loving and progressive forces throughout the world, as well as to the unity of the international workers movement," said the broadcast.

In the Moscow dictionary, peace-loving and progressive forces usually means Communist sympathizers in non-Communist countries.

Harry Grayson s SCOREBOARD

(EDITOR'S NOTE: This is the second of two dispatches in which an astonished Harry Grayson, NEA's veteran sports editor, looks at the implausible case of Pete Rademacher and his ambition to "clean up professional sports." Never a story quite like it.)

By HARRY GRAYSON
NEA Sports Editor

NEW YORK—(NEA)—Jack Hurley is the only showman alive with enough nerve to promote a heavyweight championship fight between Floyd Patterson and Pete Rademacher. P. T. Barnum is dead.

Unless young Patterson beats him to it, which is more than likely, Rademacher, who has never had a professional fight, will take at least one roundhouse right-hand punch at the titleholder at Sick's Stadium in Seattle, Aug. 22. He'll do it despite the screams of every boxing commissioner in the land, except Hurley's guys in the State of Washington who sanction this bout.

The production is so frightfully unique that Hurley had to put in additional seats and indications are that he will sell more than 20,000 of them for a $400,000 gate.

Hurley, the one-man organization, is so busy with this windfall that he no longer has time to indulge in his favorite pastime—playing bridge with old ladies on the mezzanine floor of Seattle's Olympic Hotel. His office is in his hat and hotel room. He writes press releases that match his fight, delivers tickets and will see that the ring is up in plenty of time.

• • •

With Rademacher in Columbus, Ga., and Patterson at Greenwood Lake, N. Y., Hurley, who bills himself as the former's friendly promoter, is on the long distance telephone 30 times a day. He gets to bed at 4 o'clock in the morning and is awakened by a long distance call four hours later.

"I believe an air of mystery is a good thing in a fight promotion," says Hurley, who managed Billy Petrolle and Harry Matthews and numerous others. He most certainly has it in this one.

"Why is everybody screaming about this fight?" Hurley rasps into the telephone.

"We are not invading the privacy of anybody's living room or even a single beer saloon. The fight will not be telecast. People are not being hit on the head with a baseball bat and made to buy tickets. We are staging the fight strictly for Rademacher's friends and relations in the Pacific northwest. These people know what Pete can do and there are a lot of them.

While Cus D'Amato, manager of Patterson, gallops around New York giving all within hearing three different definitions of an amateur, all of them building Rademacher as a big bear, Hurley assures the public that the former Army officer who captured the imagination of Georgians is considerably more formidable than a green hand.

"When Rademacher put the slug on that Russian in the Olympic Games," shouts Hurley, "he became champion of more territory than Patterson.

"You know he can punch and I tell you he can fight. He is awkwardly clever and smart. I've known him a long time, worked with him a lot."

• • •

For Hurley to be with an amateur is startling. "The best thing any amateur can do is take a check and get caught," he snarls.

Hurley has a splendid working partner in Rademacher, who not only promoted himself into this fight but an organization called Youth Unlimited, Inc., as well. Hurley and Rademacher make a great team. The thought of trying to buck the pair is nerve-jarring.

Even Rocky Marciano whistled in wonderment after meeting Rademacher.

"I have the greatest personal admiration for him," says the retired champion. "He's playing all the angles . . . getting in one swoop what it took me six years to work up to."

It took a Jack Hurley to put Pete Rademacher there. Jack is no amateur.

Antonelli Homers In 11th To Give Giants 5-4 Win

CINCINNATI (AP)—Johnny Antonelli, the seventh New York pitcher, won his own game Saturday with an 11th inning home run which gave the Giants a 5-4 victory over the Cincinnati Redlegs.

Antonelli had entered the game in ninth after the Giants rallied for three runs in the eighth to work their way into a 4-4 tie.

The seven pitchers used by the Giants were only one less than the National League record for one club in one game.

Willie Mays' two home runs had been the big factors in keeping the Giants in the game prior to Antonelli's blast. Wally Post also got a homer for the Reds.

Ruben Gomez, usually a tough pitcher for the Reds to handle, lasted only until the second inning.

Grid All-Stars Tackle Giants Friday Night

CHICAGO (AP)—The College All-Stars, 48 outstanding football players from 34 schools will try to master the masters, the pro champion New York Giants, in the 24th annual All-Star grid game at Soldier Field Friday night.

If the ambitious collegians, most of them headed for the pro ranks themselves, can upset the favored National Football League title team, it will mark only the eighth All-Star victory in the colorful series. The pros have won 14 games, and two ties were played.

The game will be televised nationally via ABC, beginning at 7:30 p.m., CST.

This will mark the third year that the grooming of the hand-picked collegiate squad has been entrusted to a staff of pro-trained coaches, headed by E. L. (Curly) Lambeau.

The 1955 All-Star team handled by Lambeau, who founded and coached the Green Bay Packers and was head coach for the Chicago Cardinals and Washington Redskins, spilled the Cleveland Browns, 30-27. Last year's Lambeau unit lost to the Browns, 26-0.

But the 1956 All-Stars were weakened considerably when quarterback Earl Morrall of Michigan State was injured on the fifth play of the game and his replacements failed to display the tricky Spartan's skill.

This year's squad boasts as fine a corps of quarterbacks as ever named to an All-Star roster, including Paul Hornung of Notre Dame, Len Dawson of Purdue, John Brodie of Stanford and Jim Harris of Oklahoma.

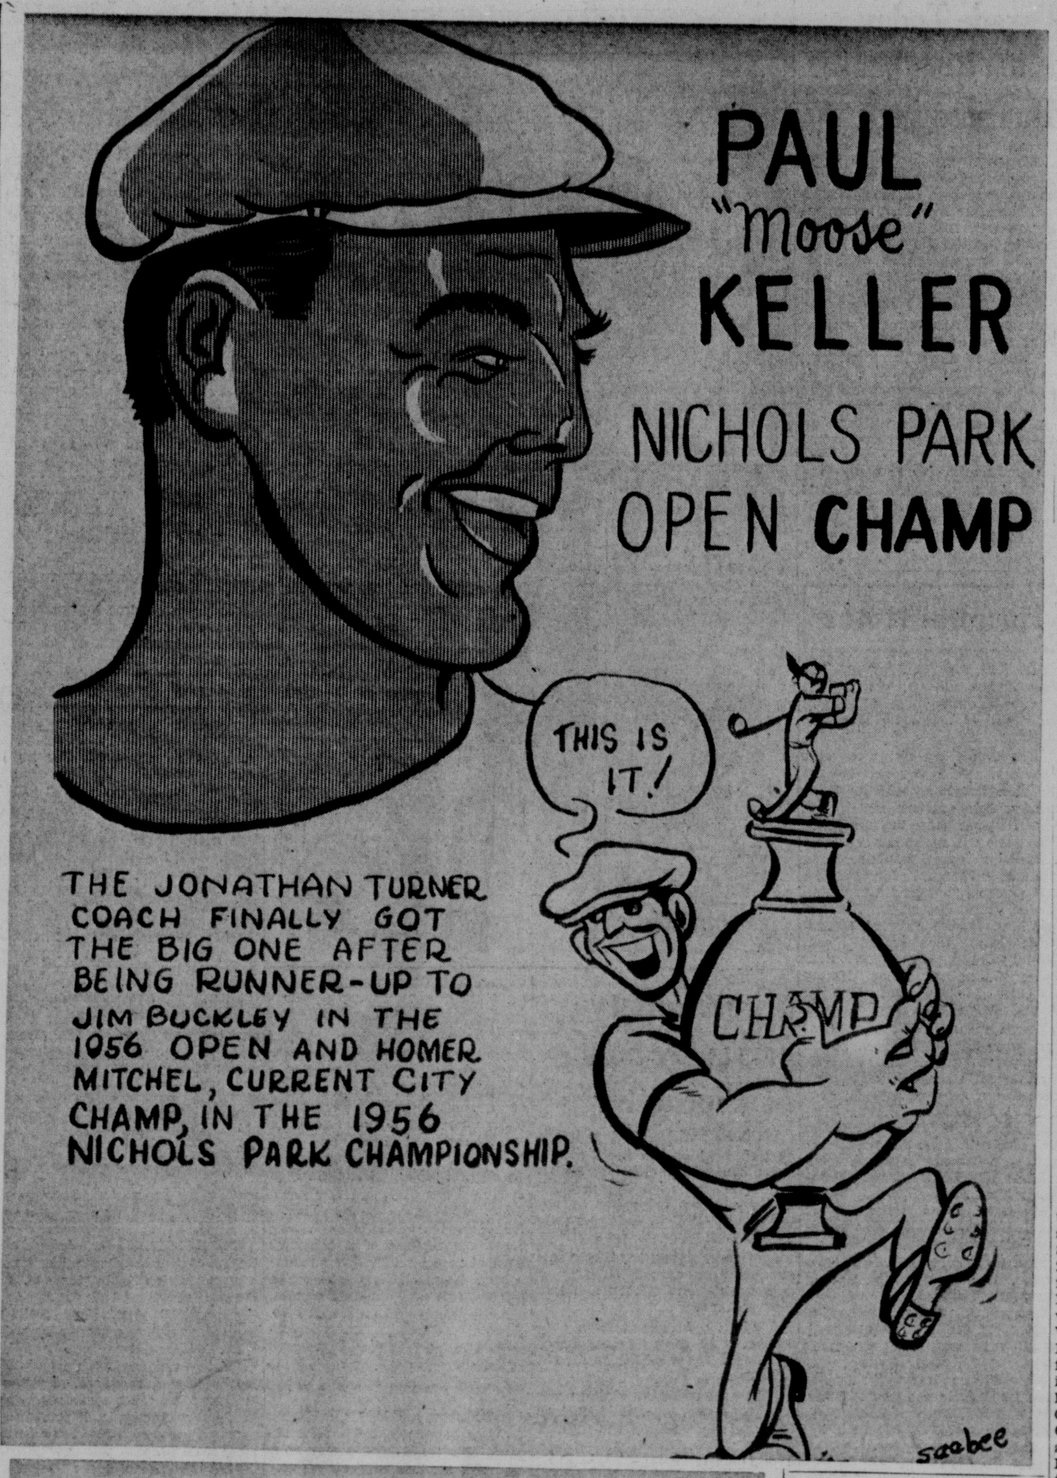

For speed and elusiveness, Lambeau has the likes of Oklahoma's Tommy McDonald, Southern California's Jon Arnett, Illinois' Abe Woodson, and Baylor's Del Shofner.

For power running, Syracuse's 220-pound Jimmy Brown and Clarence Peaks, 208-pound Michigan State halfback, may be as good as any pro back the Giants will meet this fall.

Lambeau and his staff know Friday night's game will hinge on the line play and the All-Stars will try to match the Giants, pound-for-pound and pounding-for-pounding up front.

The All-Stars have 11 tackles and guards weighing 230 or more, the heaviest men on the squad being center Joe Amstutz of Indiana, Wayne Bock of Illinois, and Earl Leggett of Louisiana State. Ohio State's great guard, Jim Parker, weighs 260.

The Boston Red Sox and St. Louis Browns played four consecutive extra inning games in 1943.

The managers for the team will be Don Painter and Jimmie Joe Costello and will be responsible for the conduct of the boys on this trip.

BOUDREAU MAY JOIN THIS YEAR'S DEPOSED SKIPPERS

NEW YORK, (AP)—Lou Boudreau manager of the Kansas City Athletics, may join Bobby Bragan and Charlie Dressen as members of this year's "deposed managers" club according to the New York Herald-Tribune.

In a bylined article by Harold Rosenthal, the Tribune reported Boudreau's job "is in definite jeopardy and the situation worsens with the passing of each day of a dolorous eastern trip for the A's."

Paul Keller and Tommy Farrell, who captured the Nichols Park Open and the 21st Central Illinois Junior Golf Championship respectively, this past week, are really done up in character illustrations under SeeBee's pen as our weekly sports personality of the week. Blesse explained that his past sketches have been straight line drawings and this week he decided to do some real caricature of Paul and Tommy. Several people have inquired as to when Charlie and I are going to run out of subjects. I don't think we ever will as long as we have local football, basketball, baseball, track, wrestling, tennis, softball and golf. And this weekly feature has met with such local enthusiasm that we can't stop now.

—O—

Paul Keller, who will be starting his eighth year as head coach in the grade school system, six at David Prince and his second at Jonathan Turner Junior High, finally cashed in on the Nichols Park Open crown last Sunday with a 2 up victory over Gordon Ledford in the 36-hole final. Prior to his title, Keller was runnerup to Jim Buckley in the '56 Nichols Park Open and was second to Homer Mitchell in the Nichols Park Championship. In 1955, Paul was the first flight runnerup in the Open Tournament.

—O—

Keller, a product of Bloomington, came to Jacksonville in 1950 after graduating from Illinois State Normal in 1949. The 6'2", 200 pound 'Moose' completed his first year of college at St. Joe's in Indiana before serving a hitch with the Marine Corps during World War II. He then entered Illinois Normal, graduated, and finished his Masters Degree there in 1953. It was also in 1953 that Paul met his wife to be, Dorothy Cobb, who graduated from Illinois College in 1951 and was teaching at South Jacksonville. Paul and Dorothy were married in 1955 and to this union, a son, Paul Dirk, was born. Young Paul, who is a year old, is going to be a chip off the ole block as far as size goes. The Kellers reside at 1212 West College. Paul has been a successful coach at the local plant, producing winners year after year and supplying the High School with some fine athletes. So, it's no more than deserving that the coach be a winner in the Open, a title that had eluded him in '56.

—O—

Eighteen - year - old Tommy Farrell, son of Mr. and Mrs. Frank Farrell of 814 South Diamond, is fast coming into his own as a top-notch golf competitor. The JHS graduate has two titles under his belt this season already. Farrell won the Jaycees Junior Golf Tournament and he claimed the 21st annual Central Illinois Junior title at Springfield Thursday with a 3 up 1 victory over Wally Heil of Taylorville. This summer, Tommy is working at the Jacksonville Country Club for Bob Shields in the pro shop. Tommy's main ambition is to become a professional golfer and at the rate he's going, he should make the grade.

Waverly meets the winner of Merkels-Quincy Supply tonight at Meredosia ball park, located behind Meredosia High. The contest decides the champion in the four-team playoff of the Illinois River Valley Softball league. Tonight's championship game starts at 8:30 p.m. DST. Merkels won the league championship during the regular season. The first four teams in the league standings, Merkels, Waverly, Ed's Tavern of Rushville and Quincy Supply, will receive trophies after the finals of the playoffs Sunday night. Merkels is sponsoring the first place trophy. Albert Yeck, league president, is hoping for a large turnout to complete a very successful first year season.

NAVY WON SIX TITLES

ANNAPOLIS, Md. (AP)—Navy's teams won six Eastern College Athletic Conference crowns during the recently concluded school year.

The Middies won the 150-pound football title and the Intercollegiate Fencing Assn. three weapon and epee team crowns, and this spring added three rowing championships. They won the junior varsity lightweight crew, freshman lightweight and freshman crowns.

SOCCER DEPLACES BOXING

EAST LANSING, Mich. (AP)—Boxing will be just a memory as a varsity sport at Michigan State University after next winter. The MSU Athletic Council delivered a knockout blow to the manly art when it decided to replace the sport with soccer in intercollegiate competition. The action will leave Wisconsin as the only Big Ten school sponsoring boxing.

Mexican heavyweight boxer Chebo Hernandez also excels at swimming and soccer.

Dodgers Score 4 In 8th To Defeat Milwaukee, 7-1

MILWAUKEE (AP) — A four-run uprising in the eighth inning and three hitless innings of relief pitching by Ed Roebuck carried the Brooklyn Dodgers to a 7-1 victory over the Milwaukee Braves Saturday before a crowd of 39,368.

The Brooks shelled starter and loser Lew Burdette from the mound in the eighth and added two more for good measure off Don McMahon in the ninth.

Roy Campanella's bases loaded single, good for two runs was the key blow of the four-run rally that shattered a 1-1 tie. It came off McMahon.

Grim Stars In Relief As Yanks Beat Indians, 5-3

NEW YORK (AP)—Air tight relief pitching by Bob Grim in the ninth inning saved a 5-3 victory for the New York Yankees over Cleveland Saturday as homers by Gil McDougald and Hank Bauer powered the league leaders to their sixth straight win.

Grim replaced Johnny Kucks with two men on base and nobody out in the ninth. The Yanks fine bullpen pitcher made Rocky Colavito foul out and retired pinch hitters Bob Lemon and Dick Williams on fly balls to the outfield.

Art Ditmar was breezing along in steady fashion with a three run edge over 37-year-old Early Wynn in the 90 degree heat when he suddenly weakened in the eighth.

Big 10 Loses 100 Prep Prospects Due To New Plan

CHICAGO, (AP)—Big Ten schools offered a total of about 700 tenders under the new financial aid to athletes plan and there were approximately 600 acceptances.

An Associated Press survey disclosed the figures Saturday.

They show that the conference lost about 100 high school prospects to outside recruiting.

This number, however, could be reduced, for the 100 tenders of aid turned down could have been from athletes signifying their intentions at more than one big ten school. This is a common procedure.

The deadline for acceptances of tenders was Thursday under the new program which bases financial aid strictly on the proven need of an athlete.

Of the 600 acceptances, about 380 were from football players. A maximum of 100 tenders yearly can be made by each school, but the only school approaching this number, according to the survey, was Michigan State. The Spartans made 97 tenders and had 80 acceptances.

Ohio State reported that "about 83" tenders were made and "about 72" accepted, including 35 gridders. Four football prospects turned down the Buckeyes, including all - state quarterback Ike Grimsley of Canton, Ohio. He plans to enter Michigan State.

Twenty-three of Ohio State's 72 acceptances were eligible for a "full ride." Twelve of these were academic scholarships, granted without regard to a parent's financial status. The other 11 will get their entire expenses for one year because their parents, under the proven need formula, could not afford even a portion of the cost.

"There isn't any reason why the new grant-in-aid plan can't work," said the Buckeyes' athletic director, Dick Larkins. "It's going to take a year or two, maybe longer, really to be able to analyze the plan. One thing that pleases me is the caliber of the kids we're getting."

Ohio State was among the schools voting against adoption of the plan.

Iowa also was against the plan. The Hawkeyes had 72 tenders and 52 takers, including 38 football players.

Iowa athletic director Paul Brechler said: "although it is early to reach conclusive appraisal, we have found the program to be cumbersome and unrealistic. It is also hard to administer."

Athletic director Doug Mills, of Illinois said the plan needed policing and enforcement and that in this respect he was "discouraged" with it.

The financial aid plan provides stringent penalties for violaters. The only case to receive action this far was the recent one year suspension of Indiana's new head football coach, Phil Dickens, for offering financial aid in excess of the limit.

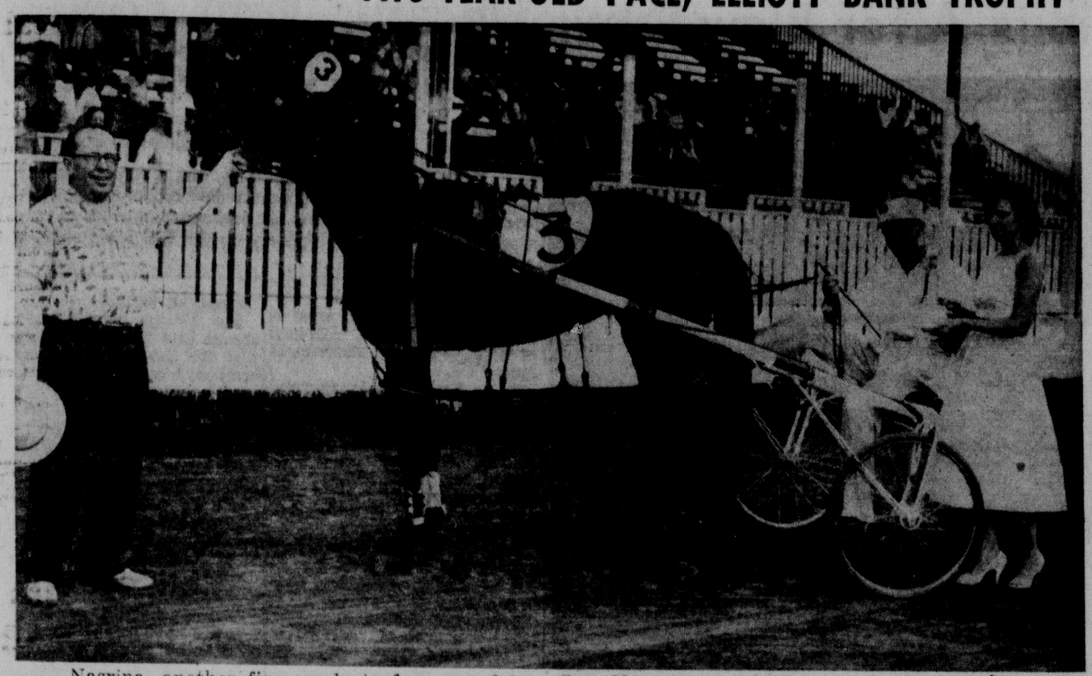

The Hoosiers offered 50 tenders, the smallest number of any school reporting in the survey, and 46 acceptances including 34 gridders. The acceptance ratio was among the best in the conference.

ST. LOUIS (AP)— Billy Muffett, making his first major league appearance, twirled four scoreless innings of relief as the St. Louis Cardinals defeated Philadelphia Saturday 3-1. The victory went to $50,000 bonus baby Von McDaniel.

The victory meant the Cards grabbed a one game lead over Milwaukee in the torrid National League race. The triumph was the streaking Red Birds eighth in a row.

The win was McDaniel's, although he was lifted for a pinch hitter in the fifth inning when the Cards scored twice, after trailing 1-0.

Boston Drops Chicago Six Games Off Yanks' Pace With 8-7 Victory

BOSTON (AP)— Jimmy Piersall keyed Boston's 8-7 victory over Chicago Saturday with a tie-breaking, two-run single as the Red Sox withstood three rallies and produced a pair of vital put-outs at home plate.

The loss dropped the second place Chicagoans six games behind New York, which defeated Cleveland 5-3.

Southpaw Dean Stone, third Boston reliefer in the inning, halted the final Chicago bid a run short in the ninth when Nellie Fox popped to Billy Consolo in short left.

After Piersall's blow touched off a five-run Red Sox eighth, the Pale Hose filled the bases with none out in the ninth and scored four times on a bases-loaded walk, two infield outs and a double by Luis Aparicio.

Waverly In Finals Of Playoff At Meredosia

Waverly defeated Ed's Tavern of Rushville to enter the finals of the Illinois Valley softball league playoffs, 7-6, in eight innings. Three straight singles with only one out in the eighth frame produced the winning tally for Waverly.

Waverly took an early 4-0 lead in the 3rd inning but Ed's Tavern narrowed the count to 4-2 with a pair of runs in the fifth stanza. The eventual losers evened the score and then took a 6-4 lead on Robertson's round tripper in the 7th inning.

Waverly knotted the score in the bottom of the 7th on Speake's circuit smash to send the game into extra innings. Perhaps the turning point that led to Rushville's defeat was Cokenour's home run but he was called out for failing to touch first base.

Dick Hembrough and Holloway were the winning battery. Patterson and Cokenour were the losing battery. The winners scored four earned runs and Ed's Tavern earned five. Waverly outhit the losers, 10-9, and committed one less error, 3-2.

Waverly meets the winner of the Merkels-Quincy Supply tilt Sunday night at Meredosia, August 4, at 8:30 p.m. DST to decide the playoff championship. Merkels Hardware of Quincy is sponsoring the 1st place award. The first four teams in the final standings are to be presented with trophies following the playoff game.

18 Year - Old Don Essig Wins Public Links

HERSHEY, Pa. (AP)—Don Essig, 18, lanky youngster from Indianapolis who can hit some great iron shots and who putted like a demon, won the 32nd National Public Links golf championship Saturday by crushing Gene Towry of Dallas 6 and 5 in a superheated 36-hole final match.

Essig, 18-year-old Louisiana State University student, played superb golf against a rival who had been the steadiest par shooter in the tournament until Saturday. Towry, a 120-pound mite who can't get much distance, had been relying on a steady par golf to win — and par wasn't good enough this time.

Essig is the second youngest player to win the Publinx and only the second teenager to take the title. He is 18 years and 8 months old. Back in 1926, Lester Balstad, now one of the leading teaching professionals, won when he was 18 years, 3 months old.

Towry, a former North Texas State college player, was a professional three years, served two in the Navy and then regained his amateur status.

In spite of a scrambling start on the first three holes, Essig shot the morning round in 36-32—68, two under par for the hilly 6,005-yard par 35-35—70 Hershey Park course. He was 4 up at lunch after shooting the last 15 holes 4 under par.

In the afternoon he was just even with par for 13 holes.

As the afternoon round started, Essig looked as if he was about to make mince meat out of Towry. Don won three of the first four holes with birdies and led 7 up, but his opponent, a grim little electrical engineer who doesn't show emotion even when he's too nervous to eat, got a couple back.

Essig led by six holes at the 27th and from there on it was just a matter of time.

FOOT CHAMP HAD PROBLEMS

DENVER, Colo. (AP) — Glen R. Jorgensen, a Denver hog rancher, figures he has the champion foot size in these parts. He wears a size 16 shoe.

After Jorgensen starred in basketball and football at Adams City High School in 1942 and 1943, the school enshrined his football shoes. The shoes challenge anyone to fill them.

Jorgensen weighs 265 pounds, stands 6 feet, 5 inches. He served in the Army during World War II, and the Army took good care of his feet. The quartermaster corps gave him six huge pairs of combat boots to lug through France, Austria and Germany.

The Army made him cart the barracks bag full of shoes throughout the war for fear supply depots overseas would be unable to meet his needs.

Chicago Awarded Pan American Games For 1959

SAN JOSE, Costa Rica (AP)—The third Pan American Games, in 1959, were awarded to Chicago Saturday night. The Pan American games committee cast 13 votes for Chicago and 6 for Sao Paulo, Brazil. The games originally were scheduled for Cleveland.

Cleveland was forced to give the games back to the Pan American committee when it was unable to obtain financial assistance from the federal government.

Several cities were thought to be in the running after Cleveland withdrew but they too were sidelined by financial problems and the field finally was narrowed to Chicago and Sao Paulo.

The first games were held in Buenos Aires in 1951 and were renewed in Mexico City in 1955.

Downpour Halts Tam, Shields Fires One Over Par 73

CHICAGO, (AP)—A downpour Saturday cancelled third round play in the $25,000 All American golf tournament at Tam O'Shanter.

Only 44 players in the total field of about 150 women and men pros and amateurs had finished their round when the storm forced cancellation of all scores.

The third round will be held Sunday and the finals on Monday.

Robert Shields of Jacksonville, Ill., and Tony Holguin of Chicago each had one-over-par 73 to lead the early finishers.

All of the pacesetters were late starters and had not teed off when play was halted.

Roberto De Vicenzo of Mexico City was the men's pro leader with a second round of 64 for a 36-hole total of 133—11 under par. Bill Casper of Bonita, Calif., was next with 135 and Paul Harney of Worcester, Mass., third with 136.

Other divisional leaders when third round play resumes: women pros—Jackie Pung and Fay Crocker with 5-under-par 147; Women amateurs — Clifford Ann Creed, Opelousas, La., 157; men amateurs— Howard Everitt, Northfield, N.J., 144; Bob Pratt, Renton, Wash., 145—and Jim Hiskey, Pocatello, Idaho, 146.

COOKIE PLAYED LONG BEFORE MANAGING

WASHINGTON, D. C. (AP)— Although Harry (Cookie) Lavagetto has been in organized baseball since 1933 this is his first season as a manager. On May 7 he replaced Charley Dressen as manager of the Washington Senators. Cookie had worked for Dressen here, in Brooklyn and in Oakland for a total of six years.

Cookie, who got his nickname because he was signed by Cookie DeVicenzi, once Oakland owner, played 1,043 games in the majors and 523 in the minors. His only minor league team was Oakland. In the majors he played for Pittsburgh and Brooklyn. His lifetime batting average was .269, but his fame was gained in the 1947 World Series when he spoiled Yankee Bill Bevens' no-hitter with a pinch hit double and won a 2-1 Series game for Brooklyn.

TRULY A PERFECT RECORD

KANSAS CITY (AP) — Joe DeMaestri, shortstop for the Kansas City Athletics, says his top thrill came in 1955, his first season with the A's.

In a game in Detroit he made six hits in six trips to the plate.

"Funny thing," says DeMaestri, "all the hits were singles and each came with the bases empty. And I was the leadoff batter on each occasion."

RICHMOND, Va. (AP)—Mrs. Clara Priddy of Richmond has been playing golf for more than 30 years and was Virginia state women's champion in 1930 but until this spring she'd never made a hole-in-one. When she finally made an ace, she came back to the clubhouse weeping. She had been playing alone and it wasn't official.

Orioles Shade Athletics, 7-6

BALTIMORE (AP) — Lefty Ken Lehman came out of the bullpen to retire Gus Zernial and Irv Noren with two men aboard in the top of the ninth as the Baltimore Orioles edged the Kansas City Athletics, 7-6 Saturday night.

Lehman was the third pitcher to face the A's in the ninth and his effcient mopping up preserved Skinny Brown's fourth victory.

Brown was riding along with a 7-3 lead going into the inning but was lifted in favor of George Zuverink after giving up singles to Lou Skizas and Billy Hunter and a run-scoring double to pinch-hitter Bob Cerv.

Zuverink was greeted with singles by Hector Lopez and Billy Martin, pulling the A's to within one run of a tie, when Lehman came on to get Zernial on a bouncer back to the mound and Noren on a called third strike.

Brown had allowed only six hits and three runs until the A's rose up in a futile attempt to avert their third straight loss in the current four-game series and their 10th in 12 tests on this road trip.

TENDER TIGERS

NORMAN, Okla. (AP)—The University of Oklahoma football squad may be a tough outfit on the gridiron but the boys are tender as nursemaids at home.

When a tornado alert was sounded, the only shelter available was the basement of Jefferson house, the dormitory for athletes.

Dozens of parents and young offsprings rushed to the basement without adequate provisions. The football players took over walking crying babies, applying diapers and clowning to keep minds off the storm.

In 1933 his horses won only $22,055. But nine years later, in 1941, Calumet Farm set a money winning record with $475,091, and since has led the list in eight other years. On five occasions Calumet Farm has earned more than $1 million in purses.

Rogers Hornsby, one of the top batsmen of all time, was not effective at the plate in his two years in the minors: he hit .232 in the Texas-Oklahoma League in 1914 and .277 with Denison of the Western Assn. in 1915.

LADY ANN REED WINS TWO-YEAR-OLD TROT, FARMER'S BANK TROPHY

Lady Ann Reed, owned and driven by Day Mangus of Kirksville, Mo., finished 2-1 in the 2-year-old trot to claim the Farmer's State Bank Trophy and a split of the $1000 purse.

Miss Joy French, representing the Farmer's State Bank, awards Mr. Mangus the trophy.

Yonder Brooke, owned and driven by Lawrence Bowman of Greenfield, won the first race but placed third in the second heat. Yonder Brooke's first, however, earned him a split with Lady Ann Reed. The winning times were 2:13 and 2:12 3/5ths seconds.

Friday Night Scores

By ED WILKS
The Associated Press

Just when some folks were about to scratch Cincinnati from the National League race, the Redlegs suddenly look robust again, complete with late-inning home runs for a three-game winning streak.

After slipping from first to fifth with a terrible July run (13-14), the Redlegs are on the way back, winning 'em late—but winning.

Ted Kluszewski, Wally Post and Smoky Burgess were back in business Friday night for a 9-6 victory over the New York Giants. Klu belted a two-run homer for a first inning lead, Burgess smacked a two-run shot to regain the edge in the eighth, and Post pickled a three-run drive to win it in the ninth.

The victory put the fourth-place Redlegs within one game of Brooklyn, after Gene Conley fourhit the Dodgers and lined the run-scoring single in a 1-0 Milwaukee victory that kept the second-place Braves just two points shy of St. Louis. Brooklyn is 2½ games behind.

The Cardinals won their seventh in a row, nailing fifth-place Philadelphia 5-4 in 10 innings as Stan Musial doubled home the clincher. The Man had three hits, all for extra bases.

Chicago's Cubs, without one earned run, defeated Pittsburgh 6-4 in the other NL game. It was the sixth straight loss for the seventh-place Pirates, leading to Manager Bobby Bragan's dismissal early today. Coach Danny Murtaugh took his place.

The American League race bordered on a "runaway" again as the New York Yankees, hitless for 6 1-3 innings against Don Mossi, pushed to a five-game spread with a 3-2 victory over Cleveland. The second-place Chicago White Sox lost their second in a row, this one 5-4 to Boston in 10.

Washington skipped out of the cellar with a 2-1 victory over Detroit while Baltimore plunked Kansas City to eighth with a twi-night sweep, 5-4 in 13 innings and 10-2.

The Giants, losing six in a row, made a fight of it with home runs by Bobby Thomson and Willie Mays and a tying run in the top of the ninth on Danny O'Connell's single. Hersh Freeman won it.

Musial's second double sent Don Blasingame home from first base, digging past third when left fielder Harry Anderson slipped fielding the drive on the run. Willard Schmidt, with a two-hit relief job over four frames, won his 10th in a row for a 10-1 record. Wally Moon pushed his hit streak to 19 games with two doubles.

Conley gave up only singles, three to Carl Furillo. He walked five, but fanned Duke Snider, Gil Hodges and Rube Walker in clutch spots. Johnny Podres lost it for a 9-4 record when the Braves scored an unearned run in the fifth.

Mossi had faced only 19 men when Gil McDougald and Mickey Mantle hit back-to-back homers for a 2-2 tie in the seventh. It was Mantle's 29th. A walk and singles by Tony Kubek and pinch-hitter Harry Simpson won it in the eighth.

A bases-loaded single by Jackie Jensen won for the Red Sox, who blew an early lead set up by Ted Williams' three-run homer, his 30th to match Henry Aaron of the Braves for the major league lead.

The Senators, in eighth since April 26, made it on Julio Becquer's RBI single in the ninth to beat Paul Foytack. Camilio Pascual won it after Roy Sievers tied it 1-all with his 29th home run—matching the club mark he set last season.

George Zuverink won his 10th in relief for the Orioles on Bobby Boyd's homer in the opener. George Kell and Joe Ginsberg each drove in two runs in the nightcap. Kell replaced rookie Brooks Robinson, who was beaned by a Ned Garver pitch but escaped without a fracture.

CAUTION TO HOOKERS

DAYTON, Ohio (AP)—H. J. Hook has his home in an appropriate location. It's opposite the 12th hole at the Miami Valley Golf Club. And several golfers competing in the PGA championship called attention to the fact. Golfers were extremely careful not to hook on this hole because there's a wire fence about 50 feet off the fairway.

Senators Win In 17th Frame, 4-8, On Sievers' Blow

WASHINGTON (AP)—Roy Sievers' home run with two out in the last half of the 17th inning gave Washington a 4-3 victory over Detroit Saturday. It was the sixth straight game in which Sievers homered and tied an American League record set by Ken Williams of the St. Louis Browns in 1922 and equalled by Lou Gehrig of the New York Yankees in 1931.

His 30th homer, strapping reliefer Al Aber with the defeat in the longest major league game of the year, boosted Sievers into a tie with Ted Williams of the Boston Red Sox for the American League homer lead.

DannyMurtaughTakes Over For Bobby Bragan As Pirates Manager

By JERRY LISKA

CHICAGO, (AP)— Outspoken Bobby Bragan Saturday was replaced as manager of the lowly Pittsburgh Pirates by an interim pilot, Coach Danny Murtaugh, "for the good of the team, now, and in the future."

After his firing in the wee hours of the morning, Bragan showed up for breakfast with the man who dismissed him, General Manager Joe L. Brown, and Murtaugh. The trio posed pleasantly for pictures and then Bragan said:

"I had a lot of jobs in baseball I'd be real bitter about losing, but I can't say the same about this one.

"It's a result of the oldest rule in the book—when the team does not win, the manager has to go—so I'm going.

"Brown felt it was time to change. It was obvious that our approach to the game clashed in many instances."

Murtaugh, who is 39 as is Bragan, was named to finish the season as Pirate manager after another Buc coach, Clyde Sukeforth, turned it down.

Later in the morning, at a Pirate club house meeting in Wrigley Field where the Bucs were to play the Chicago Cubs, Brown, Murtaugh and Bragan all addressed the players, most of whom reportedly said they were sorry Bragan was leaving.

Brown explained Murtaugh was a fill-in selection to finish out the season, but gave no indication whether he has another Pirate organization man in mind to take over next season, or whether Murtaugh could keep the job if the Pirates' perked the rest of the campaign.

Murtaugh, who had minor league managerial stints with New Orleans of the Southern Assn., and Charleston, W. Va., of the American Assn., was Bragans third base coach.

Bragan's umpire-baiting, which was climaxed Wednesday night with his "orange pop" incident at Milwaukee, was not believed to have figured prominently in his dismissal. The next day, National League President Warren C. Giles fined Bragan $100 and threatened indefinite suspension if Bobby's clowning continued.

"There were a number of general reasons Bragan was released," Brown explained. "I think it best just to say it now, and in the future. Anything specific I might charge might better be left unsaid.

Dist. 117 Public Schools Will Open August 29; Still Need PE Teacher

Schools in District No. 117, Murrayville, Woodson, Lynnville, North Jacksonville, Literberry, South Jacksonville and Jacksonville, will open Thursday, August 29. Meetings for new teachers will be held in the high school on Monday and Tuesday, August 26 and 27, and on Wednesday all teachers will meet to plan for the opening days.

Supt. J. A. Mann said the only change in attendance centers will be at Literberry, North Jacksonville and Turner Junior High.

The Literberry school will not be operated and children in grades kindergarten through six from that area will be transported to North Jacksonville.

All seventh and eighth grade students in the entire district except those in the Murrayville area will be transported to Turner Junior High School.

Add New Kindergarten

In addition to the kindergarten at Jefferson, Washington, Franklin, South Jacksonville and Woodson, a morning kindergarten will be taught at North Jacksonville for children of that area.

Last year there were only three kindergarten children enrolled from North Jacksonville. This year there are 21 which would be more than Jefferson could handle together with its own children and those of the Lincoln area.

New Teachers

A number of new teachers have been employed in School District No. 117 for next school year.

WAYNE OWENS, a recent graduate of Eastern Illinois State College at Charleston, will teach speech correction. He is an additional teacher to bring the staff in this department up to four.

MRS. LELA FAIRFIELD, of Jacksonville, will replace James Medlock in the special education class in the high school. Mr. Medlock has been transferred to the sixth grade at Washington. William Harrison, of Columbia, Mo., will teach a second class in special education in Jonathan Turner Junior High School.

CAROL WEGEHOFT, of Hannibal, Mo., will teach girls' physical education in Jonathan Turner.

MRS. COLLEEN KNAPP will be the librarian and teach English in the school.

OLLIE WHITTEMORE of Springfield will teach science and math.

CLARENCE STARK, who taught agriculture and general science in the high school last year, will teach science in both junior and senior high schools.

New teachers in the elementary schools are BERTA KUSTER, kindergarten at Jefferson; VIVIAN DOBSON, kindergarten at North Jacksonville; ESTHER POLAND, of Carthage, replaces Judith Coker in the first grade at Lafayette.

BETTY ROSS, of Macomb, will teach physical education in Lafayette; MARY ELIZABETH WALSH of New York and BOBBYE JO WELCH of Jacksonville, will replace Marilyn Hapke and Ruth Pennell in third grades at Washington.

MARY MINNA JAMESON will teach a fourth grade at Washington instead of Robbie Kay Adams.

The physical education at Washington will be in charge of HELEN MARTEN of Maywood, who replaces Connie Roegge.

At Lincoln, MARJORIE PRIOR of Nauvoo, will have the second grade formerly taught by Miriam Allen; NOREEN FLYNN of Jacksonville, the fourth grade, and BEVERLY BALL will replace Joan Moran as physical education teacher. Miss Ball is returning after a year's leave of absence to secure her master's degree in physical education at the University of Illinois.

At South Jacksonville

There are four new teachers at South Jacksonville: ESTHER WHITE of Franklin, will replace Connie Dennis in the fifth grade; PHILLIS LAPTHISOPHON of Elkins, West Virginia, will teach the sixth grade that Anne Jones had last year, and HARRIETT LONERGAN of Jacksonville will take Clifford Thaxton's sixth grade room. Mr. Thaxton will teach boys' physical education in four elementary schools.

GERALDINE GODBEY has been transferred from Turner Junior High to South Jacksonville to teach physical education.

The employment of FRED OMER in vocal music and RAYBURN PIERCE for orchestra has been announced.

Tht only vacancy exists in the high school where a second girls' physical education teacher is needed.

Merchants Hurry To Salvage Exhibits After Blow-Down

As the storm which struck the Morgan County Jr. Fair subsided, anxious merchants hurried to their exhibits to salvage what could be rescued from the mounds of soaked canvas. Some were jubilant, some were dejected. Workers set to work clearing the scattered crushed exhibits that littered the site of first merchants' tent.

Although the drenching rain soaked most of the workers to the skin, their spirits were not dampened. The fair will attempt to operate at full force during the last day.

Five Hurt As Storms Level Tents; Horse Show At 2 P.M. Today

The Morgan County Fair suffered its first setback in the 1957 schedule at 6:15 p.m. Saturday.

Five people were injured when two violent wind and rain storms razed the first merchants' exposition tent.

At approximately 4:20 a storm struck. At that time it was thought that several tents might collapse, but somehow they stood through the severe wind and lashing rain. Merchants rushed to cover valuable merchandise; everyone else ran for cover. Then as suddenly as it began the rain subsided and the storm was over for a while.

The worst was yet to follow. More rain came and with it wind. Fair officials cut off electricity to the tents. The tempo of the storm built up to a crescendo. The tents filled with wind and the side poles were lifted from the ground as the canvas billowed gigantic sails before the gale.

Suddenly in one mighty heave, the merchants' tent fell crashing onto all that was housed within its bounds. Reports were relayed in the fair office of tents buckling and collapsing in the driving wind.

Then the wind, as it had before, stopped and torrents of rain fell on already soaked rescue workers and merchants.

Five persons were taken to Passavant hospital for treatment. Mrs. Lena Briggs, Karen Briggs, 14, and Billie Briggs, 4, and Jess Briggs, all of rural route 2, Jacksonville, were released after emergency treatment for minor cuts and bruises.

Mrs. Marcy Turk of Springfield remained at the hospital, where she is suffering from shock.

Horse Show Today

The horse show scheduled for the evening was called off due to the muddy track.

The officials of the fair announced last night, however, that the horse show will be held at 2 p.m. today.

Today will be a free gate day, with no admission charge.

Concessions will be ready for business and the merchants' tent that escaped severe damage will be open, as will the Wilson Shows with their 11 rides and some 25 concessions.

In the evening Pee Wee King, celebrated ABC-TV and Victor recording artist, will appear in front of the grandstand at 8:30 p.m.

Interupts Livestock Sale

The first annual 4-H livestock sale at the fairgrounds was moving along at a fine clip when the storm hit. Everybody got out and held onto the ropes to keep the tent on the ground when the first squall came.

The sale was resumed, but by that time nearly all of the prospective buyers had taken to their cars and headed home.

A few minutes later the second blow came, with cascading rain. Again, water-drenched men held down the ropes, until the top of the tent blew away.

That ended the sale.

There were 16 of the 36 head of hogs left unsold, and 10 head of fat lambs. The 26 head of baby beeves sold earlier brought premium to fancy prices.

One of the nearby hog tents blew down. The hogs had been suffering from the intense heat of the past three days and they evidently relished the cold rain and showed no concern about the damaged tent.

Third Time for Storms

The fairgrounds seems to be in the path of any storm that happens to set its sights on Jacksonville.

Two years ago the fair management proudly announced on a Saturday afternoon that "Everything's ready. Now all we need is a break from the weatherman."

In less than an hour every tent on the grounds was flat on the ground.

Volunteers from all sections of the county, plus ultra-volunteers from Sangamon, Greene, Scott and Cass county, poured onto the grounds the next day, Sunday, and labored through hot and steamy temperatures to get the tents up again.

And the fair started on schedule the following day.

Last year, just after the fair closed, a twister hit the section. It was a strong one that struck the western edge of the city. As it passed it blew away the roof of the newly built barn erected to house beef cattle.

Blocks Streets

In other parts of the city the wind and heavy rain blew down at least nine limbs and one tree taking with them both light and telephone lines. Sections of East Walcott, Franklin and Howe streets were blocked by the falling debris.

The torrential rain kept the police busy for more than an hour hopping from one street to another as the water pressure in the storm sewers mounted to the point where it blew off manhole covers in various parts of town.

Three cars were reported trapped in the viaducts on East College and Routt street.

The Routt street subway claimed one car during the storm. However, both the car and its driver were freed by the efforts of Officer Hank Campbell who waded out in the near-waist deep water and released the drain which allowed the water to go down.

On College avenue five persons were imprisoned in water which reached the tops of their car seats. Both the College avenue autos had to be towed away.

Storm Causes Accident

One traffic accident was directly credited to the storm. It occurred at the intersection of Hardin avenue and College as a 1952 Ford slowed to cross a large puddle of water blocking the street and was struck in the rear by a 1954 ½ ton panel truck. The truck received damage to the bumper and right front fender; the car to the bumper and trunk.

Car Runs Over Boy Sleeping On Ground

A 14 year old Alton youth, Richard Orville Thomas, had a narrow escape early Saturday morning when the caretaker at Birdsell's Ranch House on South Main road drove into the grounds and accidentally ran over the boy sleeping on the ground in a sleeping bag.

Young Thomas was in company with his father, Orville Thomas, 1002 Douglas street, Alton, superintendent at the McConnell Aircraft plant in St. Louis and the elder Thomas's brother-in-law, Norman Clayton of Moline. All three were sleeping in sleeping bags beside a two-wheel trailer parked at the back of the eating establishment.

The caretaker, Phillip Vogel, as is his custom, arrived at the premises and drove into the large grounds at 6:05 a.m. to park his car. In backing around in position he ran over the sleeping boy. Mr. Vogel was unable to stop in time to avoid hitting the youth, who was taken immediately to Our Saviour's hospital.

Deputy Sheriff Albert Slavens made an investigation of the accident.

The boy was X-rayed at the hospital and no fractures were found. He was bruised and has several contusions. It was reported that he may be able to leave the hospital today.

Decatur Firm Low Bidder For $312,340 Old State Road Job

With a bid of $312,340.56, the Berry Construction Company of Decatur is apparent low bidder for furnishing materials and constructing six and one-half miles of permanent asphalt surfaced highway on the Old State road, east of Jacksonville.

Five construction firms submitted bids for the job, which were opened Friday afternoon at offices of the Illinois Department of Public Works and Buildings, at Springfield.

Ralph Heaton, chairman, and Hobart Rigg, members of the Morgan county board of commissioners, attended the opening of bids. The state department opened bids on 69 highway improvement projects, several hundred contractors and officials being present.

Bids for the Morgan county project, one of the most important highway improvements here in a number of years, were:

Berry Construction Company, Decatur, $312,340.56.

Caldwell Engineering Company, Jacksonville, $331,489.30.

Chastain Construction Company, Decatur, $331,571.90.

Diamond Construction Company, Quincy, $328,663.62.

Truman Construction Company, Springfield, $325,168.

The Morgan county commissioners said they were informed that the contract to the Berry company is expected to be awarded in about 10 days, after which activities will get under way.

The section of the Old State road to be improved with a permanent asphalt pavement extends between Salem church and State Route 123 (Alexander and Ashland) paved road. Right-of-way for the new highway, which will be widened and straightened, was obtained by the commissioners several months ago.

Asphalt pavement over the section will be 22 feet in width, laid on a heavy 10 inch base.

Federal funds will meet half the cost of the improvement, with the state and county sharing the other half. Morgan county will apply motor fuel tax funds on its share of the new highway.

WADE AND HIS BEST BARROW

A TYPICAL SCENE IN THE HOG JUDGING RING

LARRY MARTIN AND HIS GILT

A SLENDER 16 YEAR OLD Scott county farm youth came to the Morgan County Junior Fair for the first time this year. He brought with him a Duroc litter of Potter line ancestry and practically wrecked the 1957 hog show.

Larry Wade, whose mail address is Hillview, belongs to the Liberty Hustlers 4-H club of Winchester led by Robert Worrall. He's been in 4-H work for four years. Earlier this year he had the grand champion gilt and the reserve boar over all breeds at the Greene county fair. He is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Ellis Wade of Hillview.

At the local swine show, which ended Friday afternoon, he had the ribbons and trophies proving he had shown the grand champion barrow, the reserve grand champion barrow and the grand champion boar.

He's shown above with his barrow, a prime 176 pounds of fine pork.

Chester White Gilt

The other championship trophy went to a splendid Chester White gilt shown by Larry Martin, 10, son of Mr. and Mrs. Rollin (Pepper) Martin of rural route 3, Jacksonville.

The Martin family is one of the strongest breeders of Spotted Poland China hogs in the country. Larry's older brother and sister, Rollin, Jr., and Myrna, dominated that division throughout the show. The elder Rollin, much better known as "Pepper," put his youngest son in the Chester White business "so the whole family wouldn't be competing against each other."

Larry and his sleek gilt, aptly named "Choice Lady," are also shown above.

In Northside Club

This is the first year he has been old enough to be in 4-H work. He's a member of the Northside club, which is led by his father and Richard DeOrnellas.

Francis Callahan of Milford was the hog judge. Superintendent George Wilson announced that there were 445 head of hogs entered in this year's show, with 214 head in the barrow show.

U.I. Corn Breeders Develop New Strains Resistant To Borers

New corn inbreds developed by University of Illinois corn breeders are getting the "borer test" this summer. And when certain lines are selected because they are resistant to corn borer, they will have proved their resistance through actual attack by live corn borers.

R. W. Jugenheimer, in charge of the University corn breeding program, reports that 45 different crosses from 10 selected inbred lines are being tested for borer resistance this summer. To carry out these tests, corn borer egg masses are obtained from the USDA regional corn borer laboratories at Ankeny, Iowa, and Wooster, Ohio. Entomologists from the Illinois Natural History Survey are also cooperating in this study.

Three Masses Per Plant

Borer eggs are put on the corn so that the breeders can be sure there will be enough borers to test the differences in resistance among the strains being tested. Three egg masses are deposited on each corn plant. With about 20 eggs per mass, this will give the corn plant a sizable dose of hungry corn borers in a few days. But these borers will confine themselves mostly to the immediate area of the research plots and will not be a hazard to neighboring farms.

After two and four weeks, the scientists will check for differences between corn strains infested with borers. They will also check on corn that is not infested except with the natural population, which is quite small this year. The first brood of borers does most of its damage to leaves, stalks and tassels. When the second brood comes along later in the season, checks will be made on grain yields, lodging and ear droppage.

Can Predict Resistance

By checking the borer resistance of different inbred lines and hybrids, Jugenheimer can predict the borer resistance of 630 different double crosses that might be made from these inbred lines.

Corn borers will not be eliminated with these new lines. But insect-resistant strains of corn are usually better able to avoid, tolerate or recover from insect attack than more susceptible strains, Jugenheimer points out. Using strains with more insect resistance and tolerance will cut costs for sprays and dusts to control the corn borer.

Better Hybrids Seen

Tests show that the best resistant inbred lines developed so far have at least twice the resistance of present popular hybrids grown by farmers. Four new corn borer resistant inbred lines were released in 1956. These lines—R71, R109B, R113, and R168—were the first developed with corn borer resistance and released to seed producers.

Other resistant inbreds that show other desirable qualities will also be released to seed producers. From these resistant inbreds will come hybrid seed corn that farmers can plant with less fear of serious losses from destructive corn borers.

Illinois Farmers Outlook Letter

MORE FAT CATTLE WITHIN 60 DAYS

Market supplies of fed cattle seem likely to be quite abundant in August and September. Supplies in prospect for the remainder of this year may be more moderate — perhaps about the same as last year. These conclusions are based on a study of the USDA report of cattle on feed in 13 major feeding states on July 1.

The number of cattle and calves on feed was estimated at 3,681,000 head. This number was 8 percent more than were being fed a year before.

Most of this increase is headed for market in August and September. Apparently many farmers remember that prices were high and rising during these months last year, and they hope that the pattern will be the same this year.

Many More

According to the USDA report, farmers intend to market about 1,880,000 fed cattle in August and September. This number is about one-fourth more than were intended for market in these months a year ago. It is about one-tenth more than were intended for market in this period two years ago.

Actual marketings never follow farmers' reported intentions exactly, but the intentions are the best available indications of future market supplies.

The large numbers of fed cattle headed for August-September markets will probably limit price premiums for finish. On the other hand, prices of the cheaper grades of cattle are expected to be considerably higher than they were last fall. Thus the average level of cattle prices in August and September may be about equal to that of a year before.

Weight About Same

Cattle now on feed weigh about the same as those on feed a year ago. Heifers make up 29 percent of the total, compared with 28 percent last year. Steers are down to 67 percent from 68 percent last year. Calves on feed are only 3 percent of the total compared with 4 percent a year ago. (Calves purchased last fall now classify as steers or heifers.) Cows made up less than 1 percent of the total each year.

Farmers are feeding cattle a little longer this year than they did last year. Of the total cattle in feedlots, 29 percent have been on feed more than six months compared with 27 percent a year ago. The proportion on feed less than three months has been reduced to 39 percent from 41 percent last year. The longer feeding period boosts the count in feedlots but does not increase the number available for slaughter.

Price Prospects Favorable

Price prospects for fed cattle in the October-December quarter remain favorable. If farmers carry out their recent marketing intentions they will move a larger than usual share of their fat cattle before October 1. Then, too, the number of cattle available for feedlot replacements during the July-September quarter will be less than last year. Supplies of competitive meats are not increasing much. And consumer buying power promises to hold up well.

Farm Population Down As Balance Of State Climbs

URBANA—Illinois population is now estimated at 9.5 million, according to an estimate by C. L. Folse, University of Illinois rural sociologist. This figure represents an increase of 872,000 since the 1950 census was taken.

Growth made during the last seven years has been about 10 percent. Folse points out that this is equal to the increase made during the entire decade 1940-50.

During the 86 months since the last census, monthly growth has averaged slightly more than 1 percent in Illinois. But this is less than the 1.5 percent recorded for the entire nation, the sociologist concludes.

Illinois farm population is estimated to be down slightly from 1955, at which time it was estimated to be 690,000.

It now seems almost certain that last year's soybean crop was overestimated by several million bushels, reports the University of Illinois grain marketing staff.

The sixth annual Dairy Day at the University of Illinois will be September 5.

Pasture Seeding

Mid-July marked the start of grass and clover seedings on the Station. An area known as the Oscar Phelps tract had been plowed for a corn crop. But a more or less continuous deluge this spring delayed planting. By mid-July it was so late that instead of corn a pasture seeding of tall fescue, red clover, ladino clover and lespedeza was made. July seedings have been very successful in creek-bottom areas, but this upland seeding marks one of the few times it has been tried. As a general rule, pasture seeding is delayed until late August or early September.

Interseeding

For many years attempts have been made to grow a green manure or cover crop between corn rows. Success of interseeding in corn depends on moisture conditions following seeding. The most successful procedure has been to use a one-horse drill in summer or early fall. But this is not a one-horse age. That is why on some experimental corn plots we recently witnessed a strange sight. In corn about a foot high we saw a tractor driver operating at full throttle, not daring to look behind as he pulled a heavy roller seeder. He was interseeding alfalfa and lespedeza each at the rate of ten pounds per acre. The corn has popped back, with no evidence today of the roller treatment. Showers that followed have caused the legume to germinate and start growing.

Grass Silage Looks Good

Clover and alfalfa silage was made more than a month ago, stored in trenches and covered first with clear plastic and then with sawdust. Inspection now reveals a product that is unusually bright and green. This forage was wilted before it was chopped, and then 200 pounds of ground grain was mixed with each ton. To date the only evidence of seepage is a narrow, light brown stain on the concrete floor.

Plastic Covering Corn Ground

A plastic similar to that covering the silage is also covering several plots of corn on the irrigation experiment. The purpose is two-fold: (1) to keep rainfall and irrigation water, except as wanted, from falling on the plots and (2) to cut down evaporation losses so that the only water that is lost will be that passing from the corn plants.

This type of study will permit researchers to determine precisely the amount of water used in the life processes of the corn plant, as well as to measure evaporation losses. This information will be important in making irrigation recommendations.

Limited Tillage Specialist Now On U.I. Staff

URBANA—Sam R. Aldrich has been appointed professor of agronomy extension specializing in soil fertility at the University of Illinois College of Agriculture, M. B. Russell, head of the agronomy department, announced this week.

Aldrich spent six months at the University of Illinois in 1956 assisting with research in minimum tillage. At that time he was on leave from Cornell University, where he has been on the staff since 1942.

While at Cornell Aldrich worked as crops and soils extension specialist and also did research in this field. He has written many circulars, bulletins and farm magazine articles on crops and soils. He is also the author of a textbook, "Farm Soils, Their Fertilization and Management," for high school and agricultural short course students.

Aldrich received his B. S. degree in agriculture at Michigan State University and his Ph.D. from Ohio State University. He is a member of the American Society of Agronomy, the American Association for the Advancement of Science and other honorary and professional organizations.

To reduce danger of cutting the cord, work away from the electrical outlet with an electric power mower so that the power cord lies on the cut-over area, suggests an extension safety specialist at the University of Illinois.

Judges Projects

Mrs. Ethel Belote, Greene county home adviser spent Wednesday in Hardin where she served as a judge at the Calhoun county Achievement Program. Mrs. Belote served in the same capacity Thursday at the Cass county Achievement program at Virginia.

Only about one home-grown Christmas tree in four will be salable without proper pruning and shaping, says an extension forester at the University of Illinois Dixon Springs Experiment Station.

Ahead In The Race

A good many qualified individuals have been saying for a long time that the United States seriously lags behind Russia in the development of intermediate and long-range missiles. Consequently it is more than ordinarily reassuring to read new reports that the very reverse may be true.

According to these accounts, government officials now accept as entirely authoritative the fresh information that the Soviet Union is not keeping pace with us in the missile field.

Our own interest, of course, is being concentrated upon the intermediate 1,500-mile ballistic missile and the long-range 5,000-mile weapon. But the Russians are said to be focusing their energies on missiles with a 200 to 600-mile range—sufficient to blast Western Europe from satellite bases.

There is one evidently authenticated report that the Russians have successfully test-fired a ballistic missile 1,200 miles. Nevertheless, they are believed to be, on the whole, in a very early stage of development with the more menacing 5,000-mile devices we are working feverishly to perfect.

The latest information contradicts published statements that they have actually fired a long-range, intercontinental missile.

These same reports, indeed, question assertions that the Soviet Union leads us in the intermediate field, despite the successful test firing. The present belief is that we are ahead in both categories.

The Russians apparently fire a great many more test missiles than do our own experimenters. But this is not regarded as necessarily a sign of superior progress. To the contrary, experts here believe this indicates that Soviet scientists are "stabbing in the dark" as they search for solutions to missile problems.

Evidence available in Washington suggests the Soviet Union is testing relatively primitive motors in the intercontinental missile field. Their lack of advance in motor development may explain partly why they are concentrating on the 200 to 600-mile range at this time.

Whatever ability the Russians may have to deliver nuclear warheads over long distances seems to stem from their development of manned or pilotless aircraft rather than missiles.

Obviously, while there is a reassurance for us in all this, there is no ground for complacency. Rates of progress can alter, and leads can vanish. Besides, A or H-bombs dropped from aircraft are not less devastating than those fired from sites far off in Europe.

Loose Grip On Life

Not too long ago some reporter in a big city began tabulating traffic violations he observed in his regular driving rounds. He collected a fantastic list in a short time.

Anyone can do the same, if he likes, when he's spinning along the open highway. Try it some day.

If you do, the chances are that the most noticeable flaw in driving technique will not be an offense punishable under the law but a mere act of carelessness. It most likely will be the failure of most motorists to grip the steering wheel properly.

In handling a modern automobile with its tremendous power and potential speed, constant control is clearly a vital key to safety. You must be able to manage the car in any developing road situation, no matter how critical.

This being so, it is absolutely astonishing to see how many drivers hold the wheel casually with one hand—or even a few fingers—while the other is draped out the window in some foolish attitude of relaxation suitable to a living room couch but not a speeding car.

In Hollywood

By BOB THOMAS

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — Ah, there's nothing like a busman's holiday—reading show biz tombs beside Balboa Bay.

Most adventurous of my literary excursions was "Wyatt Earp, Frontier Marshal" by Stuart Lake. I wanted to see how much Hugh O'Brian and Burt Lancaster act like the famed marshal. Conclusion: Messrs. O'Brian and Lancaster are pikers compared to the real Earp.

What a gunfighter the guy was, judging from his recollections! And what iron in his final wish!

Shortly before he died, Earp told Lake: "the greatest consolation that I have in growing old is the hope that after I'm gone they'll grant me the peaceful obscurity I haven't been able to get in life."

Now they won't let the poor guy stay dead. And some rat even stole his tombstone! There ain't no justice, Wyatt.

Browsed through Bosley Crowther's fine reporting job of the rise and fall of MGM, "The Lion's Share." Crowther covers all the bases in good style, but he may be forced to add another chapter to cover the latest maneuverings in the studio's history.

There's no surer way to damage a studio than to have warfare waged in the New York office. The golden age of Hollywood came when the film creators had a free hand to do their work with imagination and daring. Trouble comes when the moneymen, with no knowledge of film making, interfere. Note the sad story of RKO, purchased by a tire firm and now idle.

"Charlie," Ben Hecht's affectionate bouquet to his writing partner, Charles MacArthur, proved highly readable. Hecht can still rattle out a story, letting the sles land where they may.

But of course, he had a great subject to work with.

Explanation—Set Precedent—Which Williams?—Canadian—Trapped in D.C.—Hot but Good

BY DOUGLAS LARSEN
NEA Staff Correspondent

WASHINGTON—(NEA)—Other morning in Brooklyn, N.Y., cab driver Dan Longhi was roughly awakened by his obviously irritated wife.

"Explain this one if you can," she said, waving a card and check which had just arrived in the mail.

"Why is this madame sending you 50 bucks?" she demanded.

"I don't know no madame and there's no reason why one should be sending me 50 bucks," the sleepy Longhi replied.

He examined the check and sure enough, it was for $50 and made out to him. He couldn't make out the scrawled signature. But after studying the card a light began to dawn.

It read: "Madame Herve Alphand."

He explained to his dubious wife that he had driven a distinguished looking couple who spoke French to Radio City from a hotel about a month ago and that the lady had left a compact in his cab. He turned the compact into the police lost-and-found office.

"This must be the reward," he concluded.

Mrs. Longhi was still unconvinced so he ended up taking her to police lost-and-found office, where her doubts were finally erased. Police had found the owner of the compact—the wife of the French ambassador—through its serial number.

Dan, who is hep to Washington protocol, is treasuring the card. "It means that I can call on Mrs. Alphand any time, and I'm going to, the next time I get to Washington."

MRS. MAXWELL TAYLOR, wife of the Army Chief of Staff, and Mrs. Wilber Brucker, wife of the Secretary of the Army, are setting a dangerous precedent in this town.

When they are in a receiving line they insist on getting all names straight. They go even further. They make some nice, personal comment to each guest making him feel really welcome.

The danger of this is that it may force others in receiving lines to be cordial. The tradition in Washington receiving lines is to offer a limp hand, mumble some name that doesn't even sound like yours and not even look at you. The result is that the guest usually feels that he is a boorish intruder.

WALTER WILLIAMS, undersecretary of commerce, is not a superstitious man, but the fact there are 13 Walter Williamses listed in the phone book here is beginning to get under his skin.

First of the month, he never knows what assortment of bills belonging to some other Walter Williams he'll get. Whenever he answers the phone he starts out saying, "This is the Walter Williams from Commerce speaking."

It has been proposed that a "Walter Williams Clearing House" be established where bills, telephone calls and messages would be sorted first, for delivery to the proper Walter Williams.

MRS. E. C. MAYHEW, wife of the Canadian military attache, suffers a strange seasonal psychosis. In summer she's secure, confident and well-adjusted. Comes winter she's shy, retiring and tends to be evasive about where she's from. This is her diagnosis:

All winter every blizzard and cold spell in the States is blamed on air from Canada. I get so I hate to admit I'm from there. But during summer, when people pray for cold spells from cold Canadian air, I'm just a different woman."

PHOOEY ON cutting budgets. Let's get Congress out of town for the summer.

The daughters of Vice President Dick Nixon are much too well brought up to say a thing like this. But they must feel it. They had some wonderful vacation plans arranged with their parents but the inability of Congress to adjourn, keeping their daddy in town, has wrecked these plans.

Many other children are trapped in sweltering Washington for the same reason.

IF YOU'RE SICK of cooking hamburgs and hot dogs on your outdoor grill, try sati gambeng. It's a Far Eastern recipe revealed with huge success by Indonesian military attache Alex Kawilarang at a big garden party the other night.

Cut up lamb and stick the pieces on individual skewers. Marinate it in soy sauce and garlic. Cook it over a charcoal grill and serve it with a sauce made of peanut butter and chopped green chilis. It's sensational, but if you're not used to hot food it might be wise to have an asbestos lining for your throat.

After about a ton of sati gambeng was consumed at the party, there was dancing which lasted until just before daybreak. Alex and his pretty wife Nelly are great party throwers.

Money Spent on Family Vacation Is Not Wasted

"We could have redecorated the living room for what our two weeks' vacation trip cost us," I recently heard a woman remark.

Maybe so. But the family that goes away for a happy holiday doesn't really need to have the living room redecorated. Just as it is, it is bound to look good to them when they return home.

Furthermore, if it has been a really successful vacation, the family will come back with enough new ideas, new interests and pleasant memories to make life more fun in the stay-at-home months ahead.

And they'll settle back into the routine of living, with its constant demands and obligations, refreshed and renewed.

On a vacation, too, members of a family are drawn closer together. Because they can't go their separate ways, they seek the kind of relaxation and fun they can enjoy together.

NOT WASTED

Something of all they do and see and share they take back home with them. It adds a glow to family life.

So it is foolish to measure a vacation in terms of what the money spent on something else could have bought.

Having "something to show" for the money you spend isn't always of the utmost importance. There's not much for a family to show when they return from a happy vacation trip, outside of a few snapshots or home movies and a few souvenirs.

But if they take up life refreshed and have happy memories stored away, they come back richer for the time and money spent. Nothing was wasted.

But not, of course, if they worry because they haven't anything to show for what they spent.

The World Today

By JAMES MARLOW
Associated Press News Analyst

WASHINGTON (AP) — If the civil rights bill is finally passed—even with the amendment adopted early today providing for jury trials in criminal contempt of court cases—Negroes will still be winners in this fight.

First: It will be the first time in this century Congress has passed civil rights legislation. Which means: The power of Southern whites to block this effort has been broken. More civil rights laws can come later.

Second: The government, through the attorney general, will be able to step into cases where Negroes have been deprived of their voting rights and begin action to protect them.

Third: A federal judge, even with the amendment in the bill if it becomes law, can take action on the attorney general's request to get Negroes registered and he can jail people who stand in their way.

Fourth: Just because the attorney general can step in and expose cases of individual or mass discrimination against would-be Negro voters, communities which want to keep them from the polls will be forced to be self-conscious.

The reason: Through court action their tactics against the Negroes will be exposed for the whole country to see.

And too much exposure of voting rights violations will probably create a mood in Congress in the future to pass more legislation with more teeth.

This is what a federal judge will be able to do, and not do, under the amendment added to the bill early today:

Say a registrar of voters—call him Smith—won't register the Negroes in his community who want to vote. They can tell the attorney general. The latter can ask a judge to order the registrar to stop interfering.

Before issuing the order the judge will hold a hearing, letting the attorney general and the Negroes on one side show how the alleged interference occurred, and the registrar on the other to show why he thought he was justified in what he did.

It's possible there might be some legitimate reason for his action. If so, the judge would not issue an injunction. But if the judge thought the registrar unjustified, he'd tell him to let the Negroes register.

Suppose Smith didn't comply but there was still time before election day to get the Negroes registered. The judge could bring him into court, try him on a charge of civil contempt, and jail him.

In a case of civil contempt the judge alone would try the man, without a jury.

But the difference between civil and criminal contempt is this: Jailing a man for civil contempt is intended to punish him for willful disobedience of a court order when there is no longer time to comply.

Thus Registrar Smith, found guilty of civil contempt, would be jailed without any definite sentence hanging over him. He could get out of jail the moment he said he would obey the court order and register the Negroes.

Suppose he stubbornly decided to sit it out in jail—on a charge of civil contempt—until after election when it would be too late to comply. With election over, registering the Negroes would have no meaning.

The judge would have to release him from jail when it was too late to comply with the court order. But then the judge could bring him up on a charge of criminal contempt—because it was too late to comply and Smith had completely ignored the court order.

This time—in a criminal contempt proceeding under the amendment added to the bill—Smith would be tried by a jury of his own neighbors, and not by the judge alone. The jury might acquit him butt he tactics of the community against Negroes would then be public knowledge.

Or say this happened: Smith was never jailed for civil contempt but disobeyed the court order by stalling off the Negroes until after election day. And say they hadn't protested to the judge while there was still time to make Smith comply. So Smith didn't go to jail for civil contempt at all.

But, with election over, the attorney general and the Negroes complain to the judge that Smith willfully disobeyed him. He could cite Smith for criminal contempt. But Smith, because of the amendment, would have to be tried by a jury when charged with criminal contempt.

If You Earn $600 a Year, You're One of the People

BY BEULAH STOWE

"I get an annual income of less than $600," says Mr. Stanley S. Pavlik, "but I don't consider myself a poor man. I'm just one of the people. I've got more people in the same income bracket with me today than there were when I was earning $125 a week."

According to a report from the Internal Revenue Service, 3,939,817 Americans earned $600 or less in 1954. That's $50 a month or under. In the same year 3,353,077 people earned between $6,000 and $7,000. (Mr. Pavlik's annual income before he retired fell within these brackets.)

The retired person who earns less than $600 a year may not be rich, but he has plenty of company.

If your retirement income adds up to between $600 and $1,000 a year, you are a bit wealthier but your category is a little smaller: 3,180,541 people earned this income.

If your income is less than $5,000 a year you are one out of almost 42,000,000 people. If your income is more than $5,000 a year, you have only about 14,500,000 people sitting with you on the wealthy side of the street.

Mr. Pavlik, who was philosophical enough to discover that he "ain't alone" with his $50 a month, admits that he would be willing to swap some of his misery-likes-company attitude for a larger income. He has been retired for less than two years, and says his income, which is a monthly Social Security payment, would not have stretched to take care of him if it had not been for the fact that he owns his own home, lives in a warm climate where heating and clothing bills are low, and had a bank account which he could tap to help out.

At the same time, the bank account won't last forever, and Mr. Pavlik is looking for a way to augment his income. It's not that he doesn't like those 3,939,817 people, you understand. They're good company.

A—You could check the financial positions of your brother and sister, and urge them to share your mother's care. You might also remind them that a mother is a duty, legally and morally. If your brother and sister have lost all memory of the days when Mother took care of them, it's their loss. You are one of those vanishing Americans who "seen your duty and you done it."

WEEKLY BIBLE COMMENT

An Ancestor of Jesus

BY WILLIAM E. GILROY, D.D.

An entire Book of the Bible is devoted to the story of Ruth, a great, if not the greatest, of Old Testament women.

I think that for forcefulness of character and achievement I would give the word "greatest" to Deborah. She was the judge of Israel, whose sheer strength of will and wisdom was such that the palm tree under which she dwelt (Judges 4:5) became the place where people came for judgment.

Moreover, her power and influence were such that Barak, the military leader, would not go to fight unless she went with him (Judges 4:9).

But I imagine that great and admirable as Deborah was she may not have been a gentle, or particularly lovable, character. In the gentler virtues of devotion and loyalty in personal and family relationships Ruth stands unexcelled.

In the Book of Ruth is the serious record of the most beautiful relationship between mother-in-law and daughter-in-law that could be imagined; love and loyalty of the finest sort, with a courage born of mutual devotion.

It is this that gives glamor and glory to a story that began in tragedy—the tragedy of famine and exile, of marriage and widowhood.

Naomi, the eldest of the three widows, was forced by famine to go to Moab, with her husband and two sons (Ruth 1:1-5). There her husband died, and both sons died after marrying Moabitish women, Ruth and Orpah.

When the bereft Naomi decided to return to her own Bethlehem her two daughters-in-law pleaded to go with her, but she urged them to return to their own country.

As they wept, Orpah kissed her mother-in-law but yielded to her urgings and went back.

Ruth, however, in the words that have become historic and that are the center of the story, said earnestly: "Entreat me not to leave thee, or to return from following after thee: for whither thou goest I will go; and where thou lodgest, I will lodge; thy people shall be my people and thy God my God." (Ruth 1:10).

That is the center of the story but it is not its ending, nor is it its full significance. For Ruth made good her choice; she found a husband in Bethlehem, and for the full significance of the story one must turn to the genealogy of Jesus in Matthew 1:5-6.

There is the record that Ruth, the Moabitess, became the great-grandmother of King David, and therefore an ancestor of Jesus.

Harper's Bible Dictionary ends a brief article on the Book of Ruth with the statement that it is "a timeless plea for racial tolerance."

It may seem an unimportant aspect of Ruth's story, for Jesus belongs to the world. He made His mission worldwide when He sent His disciples to evangelize all nations.

But I like to realize that in His ancestry was at least one Gentile, a noble Moabitess, who became a believer in the God of Israel, but who, none the less, came from beyond the border into Bethlehem, and who has her place in the later Bethlehem of the Babe in the Manger and the Prince of the House of David.

Cold Soups Can Compete With Hottest Weather

BY GAYNOR MADDOX

Refreshing, zestful and unsual cold soups—yes, that's what more and more readers ask for. So we went to the Newark, N.J., Airport's Newarker Restaurant, noted for distinctive cold soups.

Our amiable friend, Fred Rufe, the manager gave us these delicious recipes:

Vegetable Soup Frost (Serves 10)

One medium head lettuce, 1 pound frozen spinach, ½ medium onion, 1 cucumber, 1 cup cooked green peas, 5 cups chicken stock, ½ cup heavy cream, juice of 2 lemons, 1 teaspoon salt, ¼ teaspoon cayenne, ¼ teaspoon pepper, ¼ teaspoon nutmeg.

Put lettuce, spinach, onion, cucumber and peas in blender or chop fine. When finely chopped, remove and add cold chicken stock and heavy cream. Flavor with lemon juice, salt, cayenne, pepper and nutmeg.

Swiss Cherry Soup Alpine (Serves 6)

One quart black cherries, pitted, ½ cup cherry wine, 2 cups dry white wine (Rhine), juice of 2 lemons, 2 cups chicken stock, ½ pound sugar, ½ teaspoon salt, ½ teaspoon cinnamon, 1½ tablespoons cornstarch, 5 slices white bread, butter.

Simmer cherries, wines, lemon juice, chicken stock, sugar, salt and cinnamon for 20 minutes. To bind soup lightly, add cornstarch while cooking. Cool. Cut bread into cubes and saute in butter. Serve chilled soup in individual bowls with croutons on top and a sprinkling of kirsch, if desired.

MONDAY'S DINNER: Vegetable soup frost, casserole of turkey and pimento stuffed olives, fluffy rice, green beans enriched bread, butter or margarine half cantaloupe filled with blueberries garnished with fresh mint leaves, coffee, tea, milk.

The good who don't die young seem to get over it.

GO TO CHURCH SUNDAY

BACK TO WORK—Many Americans stocked the lunch pail and went back to work the first part of 1957 after an employment dip late in 1956 and early '57. From April to May of this year, civilian employment rose seasonally. Unemployment remained about the same (see Newschart) instead of making its usual moderate decline for these months. Data prepared by government's Council of Economic Advisers

NO BANK TRIP—Despite an upsurge in disposable personal income, the American consumer wasn't making many trips to the savings bank between the fourth quarter of last year and the first quarter of 1957. Such income increased about two billion dollars—but consumer expenditures (see Newschart) rose even higher. Data prepared by government's Council of Economic Advisers.

SHARING HER SLACKS—There's no argument about who wears the pants in this family—there's plenty of room in there for both husband and wife. The slacks belong to Rose Price, of Washington, D.C., who wore them all by herself before losing 204 pounds in a group diet plan. Now, she can share them with her husband, Sigmund, as shown in this McCall's Magazine photo. Dr. John R. Pate, director of the Bureau of Disease Control of the District of Columbia, developed the group plan, with which he has pared off an aggregate of more than seven tons from 500 men and women.

Miriam Draws Kitty

Miriam Zachary, age 6 of 1515 Mound, made this fine drawing of a kitty with a big smile. Maybe it has just been gently petted by Miriam?

Miriam is in grade 1 at Lincoln school. She may come in any time for her JUNIOR JOURNALIST pencil and Junior Press card, which all children earn who have anything they have drawn or written (their own work) printed on the Junior page. We will print your photo and something about you also if you send that in.

The Grandma Fairy

By Melma Huckeby Ewert

Part 2: Wish Comes True

All the boys and girls circled around Grandma Hobble-gobble there on her throne. Their baskets were gleaming like star-diamonds.

Karmin Jeanne's basket was not as full as the other's but she sang just as sweetly as the rest were singing:

"Grandma Hobble-gobble! What shall we do Ma'am?" Grandma Hobble-gobble herself sang her answer.

"Give me your baskets, one at a time Dears."

All the children crowded up and tried to be first. Up had rushed one little boy.

"Mine's fullest, Grandma Hobble-gobble," he yelled. "Bet I've got the lucky one! Look quick Grandma Hobble-gobble."

"No!" said Grandma Hobble-gobble, shaking her head sadly.

Each little boy and each little girl, in and out of turn pressed a wee woven new-moon-shaped fairy basket into Grandma Hobble-gobble's hand.

"N-o!" she would say. "Not in that one."

Karmin Jeanne waited. She was interested in watching the others. She had so few in her basket. And it was so rude to push in and to shove.

Karmin Jeanne's Turn

At last! The very last! Karmin Jeanne smiled and curtsied and placed her wee woven basket of starlets into Grandma Hobble-gobble's hand.

Grandma Hobble-gobble smiled so sweetly that she looked really beautiful. And she sang:

"There it is Dear!
There is the lucky star
In the center of your starlets
All gleams and sparklets."

All the little boys and all the little girls crowded around Karmin Jeanne, to see.

Magic Flower

Karmin touched ever so softly the little magic flower. It began to change, petal by petal, into pure gold, right before their very eyes.

On each petal, even as they watched, there appeared a letter! Six petals! Six letters!

"What does it spell?" the children asked.

Grandma Hobble-gobble lifted that tiny center flower from Karmin Jeanne's wee basket. She herself fastened it, the delicate treasure, on to Karmin Jeanne's white dress.

She said to the children, "These letters B-E-K-I-N-D spell 'Be kind!'" She said the little gold pin was sure enough magic, and that at any time Karmin Jeanne should place her right hand on her magic flower and wish a wish for others the wish would come true.

Karmin Jeanne looked around at them all, smiling. But she saw that every little girl and every little boy wore an unhappy face.

Some seemed very angry. Each wanted the magic star!

No! They are not angry! They are just disappointed, she was thinking.

Karmin Makes Wish

Then and there, Karmin Jeanne placed her hand on her precious present that Grandma Hobble-gobble herself had pinned on her white dress.

"I wish that every little boy and every little girl in this nice big Grandma Hobble-gobble forest were as happy as I am!" (Not aloud—she wished it just to herself).

Immediately, Karmin Jeanne knew that her wish had come true. For at that very moment, every gay frocked little boy and every daintily-dressed little girl brightened.

All, with the very happiest smiles, curtsied and said, "Goodbye Grandma Hobble-gobble! I have had a lovely, lovely time," just as Karmin Jeanne had done.

Then, the six little girls took hold of hands, and the six little boys took hold of hands. And they all went tripping through the green-wood forest, over the stepping stones of the bubbling brooklet, down a hillside, through the green meadow, HOME.

An American Every One Should Know

Helen Hayes

By Walter B. Hendrickson

Helen Hayes is one of America's best, and best-loved, actresses. Movie goers know her best through her recent picture "Anastasia."

Like most of the great people of the stage, Helen Hayes began her career when she was a small child. At the age of five she was acting in a play made from Mark Twain's "Prince and the Pauper."

She took time out from acting to attend the Academy of the Sacred Heart Convent in Washington where her family lived, but she continued to act occasionally. After she graduated from the Academy, she returned to New York where she appeared in one play after another. Among them were "Mary of Scotland," "Victoria Regina," and "Mrs. McThing."

Helen Hayes is a little person, only five feet tall, but she is a fine actress, able to convince her audiences that she is really Queen Victoria, or Mary, Queen of Scots, or whoever she is portraying.

In addition to her appearances on Broadway and in the movies, millions of people have heard her on radio and seen her on television. She was chosen to play the lead in "Skin of Our Teeth," when this play went abroad to show Europeans the best of the American stage.

Works Against Disease

Helen Hayes married Charles G. MacArthur and they had a daughter, Mary, who died of infantile paralysis. In her sorrow, Miss Hayes determined that she would do all she could to stamp out this disease. She became a leader in the work of the National Foundation for Infantile Paralysis.

Miss Hayes has always fulfilled her responsibilities as a good citizen. During the Second World War she assisted with the recruitment of nurses.

She is active in the Republican Party. As a good churchwoman, she was chosen to select the Lenten reading list for Catholics.

In 1955 she celebrated her fiftieth year on the stage, and at that time a theater in New York was named for her.

As a great actress she has given much to many people. She herself says, "What God has given me through my profession, has sometimes enabled me to help others—and myself."

Pony At Fair Time

Sue Ellen Drake, age 10, of Winchester, drew this lively prancing pony that looks as if it were freshly curried for the fair's horse show.

Wishing On A Star

By Dorris Walsh Hendrickson

Chapter 2:

Jerry is visiting his grandparents, and he wishes he had a horse so that he could enter the Junior Horse race and try to win a radio. He wishes on a star and sees a horse that looks like Pegasus so he calls, "Pegasus."

As he said the name the second time, the horse came trotting out of the woods toward him. As it came into the moonlight, Jerry saw that it was only a tall white horse, swishing its long tail.

He laughed and slapped his knee. The horse stood still, turned his head on one side and wiggled his ears.

"Pegasus, Pegasus," laughed Jerry. "I sure was a wish-silly. There for a moment I really thought my wish had come true, and that this horse was Pegasus."

At each repetition of the name, the horse moved a step closer, until finally he was right beside Jerry, rubbing a long nose against his shoulder.

"Say, you're a real pet, aren't you?" Jerry reached up and patted the horse's head. "Where have you wandered from, anyway?"

The horse nuzzled Jerry's pocket. "Oh, you're used to someone carrying tid-bits for you. Well, come on, I'll get you an apple."

Turf-softened hoof-beats followed Jerry right up to the back porch. In fact, the horse put both front feet on the first step, and craned his long neck in Jerry's direction as the boy went to the bushel basket in the corner.

Horse Nibbles Apple

When Jerry held out the apple, the horse nibbled at it gently. It was just finishing the treat when Mr. Jensen came out.

"Well, if it isn't Peg. Hello, old boy." He reached out and patted the horse.

"Peg, old boy, did you say, Grand-dad?" asked Jerry.

"Yes, short for Pegasus, and he sure looked like he was flying when that boy Bill next door used to ride him."

"Pegasus!" Jerry's eyes were round as he stroked the horse, and then he turned to his grandfather. "I didn't know there was a boy next door."

"Well, you wouldn't think of him as boy, Jerry. He goes to college now."

"Why do you suppose he's named Pegasus, Grand-dad?"

"I wouldn't know, Jerry, but if you want to take him back to Bill in the morning, you can find out."

"Oh, yes, Grand-dad." Jerry's voice was bubbling with eagerness.

"All right then, you bed him down in the barn, and I'll phone Bill so he'll know where Peg is." Mr. Jensen turned and went back in the house.

Wish-Come-True Horse?

Jerry put his arms around the horse's neck. "Oh, Pegasus, old boy, you appeared when I wished on that Pegasus star. Maybe you're really truly a wish-come-true horse."

The next morning after breakfast, Jerry put old Blaze's bit and bridle on Pegasus, and climbed on his bare back. He didn't put the saddle on, because he didn't want to have to lug it back home.

He clucked to Peg and the horse ambled slowly down the road, head up, and pleased with the world. So was Jerry, now that he was on a horse's back again, and he was sorry when all too soon they turned in at Bill Malone's place, and that young man came long-stepping down the lane to meet them.

"Hi, Jerry, thanks for bringing Peg home." Bill patted the horse as Peg gently nuzzled his ear. "My, his coat shines. Looks like you curried him."

"Yes, I like horses, but Grand-dad doesn't have one now."

Peg Likes Boys

"Well, Peg likes boys, don't you, fella?" Bill gave a little nod, and Peg responded with several lively nods. "So, Jerry, come over and ride him anytime."

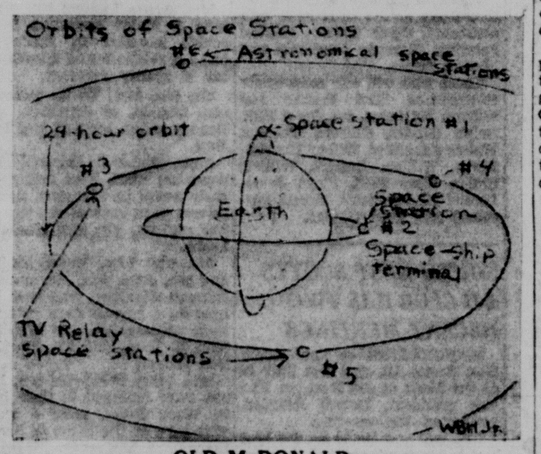

"Thanks a lot. I'd like to do that."

Jerry did go over and ride Peg almost every day after that, and Bill told him many ways to improve his riding.

"How did you happen to name him Pegasus?" Jerry asked one day as he was giving the horse a rub-down after the ride.

OLD McDONALD

By Walter B. Hendrickson Jr.

By the end of this century, there may be numbers of space stations circling the earth in different orbits for different purposes. We may be singing "Old McDonald had a space station"!

The first manned space station will probably be in a pole-to-pole orbit about 500 to 1,000 miles out. You will remember that 500 miles is as close as a satellite can come to the earth and remain up.

If it came closer, it would enter the atmosphere that wraps the earth. This would slow it down, causing it to drop out of its orbit and eventually fall back to earth or be burned up by the friction of passing through the air.

The space station would have to be travelling at 18,000 miles-per-hour in order to stay in its orbit. Since there is no air in space, there would be no sensation of speed, and the only way one could tell the rate of turning would be to note the turning of the earth far below.

Observers on earth also could track the space station and note its speed. Cameras specially designed to do such tracking have already been developed for use in the earth satellite program which is to get under way this year or next.

Watch The News

Keep your eye on the newspapers for the latest information on this.

This space station would be used at first to find out more about space close to the earth. It would also be used to find out more about the earth.

Since it would pass above every spot on earth once every twenty-four hours, it would be useful for observing weather. As soon as we learned enough about space and rocketry, we would want more space stations for special purposes.

We will tell you next about these SPECIAL SPACE STATIONS.

Rocket Ranger Serial —

My Name Is—???

By Ray Broekel

Chapter 3: What's Moving?

Synopsis—Dr. Wharton's exploration party has taken a rest break in an alumisteel hut. Roy Parker suddenly sees something moving outside the window.

Dr. Wharton and Carl Allston pushed quickly to the other two windows. "Where?" they both asked.

"Over by that sand dune—now it's gone behind it."

"I'm going out to see," replied Dr. Wharton as he snapped his oxygen helmet on. "You fellows cover me from here."

"All right, doc, but be careful. It looked pretty big to me from what I could see of it," Parker answered as he and Allston also put their oxygen helmets on. Then he shut the oxygenerator off.

Dr. Wharton stepped outside and slowly edged his way toward the dune.

Blasterrays Ready

Roy and Carl waited tensely at the hut, their blasterrays in firing position. A split second later the thing broke from behind the dune and started off swiftly across the desert. Dr. Wharton whirled around to look at it.

A series of smaller dunes kept the running thing almost hidden from the sight of the other two.

Dr. Wharton watched it as best he could as it bounded away into the distance. Then he trotted back to the alumisteel hut. The three entered and immediately began talking excitedly.

Strange Creature

"Strangest looking animal I evr saw, if it was an animal," puffed Dr. Wharton. "Four humps like a camel, a long slender body, plates all over it like an armadillo, about as tall as a lion, and almost twelve feet long. Did you fellows get a good look at it?"

"No, about all we had a chance to see were the humps that we could see every now and then when it ran between the dunes," replied Carl. "Do you think it was animal or human life, Doc?"

"Well, without really knowing I'd say animal life," said Doc. "From the four humps it figures that it stores water there because there isn't too much on Mars.

"The slender body would indicate that it might hole up in caves or holes in the ground. The heavy plate-like covering is probably for protection against the wind storms and might also serve as weather-proofing during below-freezing weather."

"That sounds like a pretty good guess, Doc," nodded Roy, "and just from your description I think the animal has another use, too."

"What's that, Roy?"

"I think it's a domesticated animal of some sort — when I glimpsed the humps I saw some things hanging from one of them that looked very much like a saddle and reins."

Urgent Message

The conversation of the three was interrupted by the beep-beeping of the codesender. Carl sat down and began copying the message. Roy and Doc peered over his shoulder.

"R-e-t-u-r-n . . . . t-o . . . . c-a-m-p . . . . t-r-o-u-b-l-e . . ."

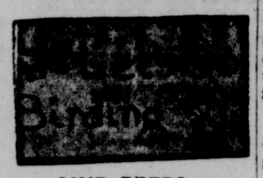

Quickly the three went outside and grabbed the uncrated alumisteel huts and spools of guide wire which they hastily packed in the already erected hut.

Then they plodded across the sands of Mars as fast as they could back to the rocket. All kinds of thoughts raced through their minds.

Dr. Wharton made the mental note that on all future expeditions some sort of communicator lines should be set up immediately. Codesenders were all right, but they could be back at the rocket by the time everything could be straightened out by code.

Roy, who was leading the way, paused at the top of a dune. He turned around, flopped to the ground and motioned for Doc and Carl to do the same. They inched their way to the top and peered over toward the rocket ship. Then they saw why Roy had so suddenly dropped to the ground.

MUD PEEPS

By Emma Mae Leonhard

All of August will be an exciting time for bird watchers who don't mind sun, wind, and mud. If you have ever walked over mud-flats, you probably have seen upon the wet mud criss-crosses of hundreds of small, three-toed foot-prints of shore birds or wading birds.

There are many kinds of shore birds, varying in size, shape, and color; but, in general, they are small or medium-sized, never as large as herons. They are seldom found far from the shores of bodies of water or from marshy lands.

As you approach the water's edge—and you can't get too close because the mud gets deeper and deeper—you will see many little plain and soberly colored birds feeding near the edge or in the shallow water. They may be in small flocks, or running here and there singly or in small groups, probing into the mud for bites of some delicacy.

Among these wading birds that at first may look more or less alike, you will find some tiny ones, streaked brown on their backs and wings and lightly streaked brown on their gray-white breasts. If their legs are yellowish or greenish, not black or greenish-black, they are probably our Least Sandpipers. These tiny, busy, round-shouldered waders prefer the grassy and muddy parts of the marsh flats and so are called "mud peeps."

Fun To Watch

Lovers of unspoiled Nature are always happy when July and August bring these little shore birds—peeps or sandpipers, which they are also called—to entertain them. It's so much fun to watch these little innocent "mud peeps" running gracefully along the margin of the water, sometimes chased by the wind-driven waves.

If you can't sort out the Least Sandpipers or "mud peeps," don't become too disgusted. You can have fun with all kinds of shore birds, whether you know the different species or not.

You will gradually begin to distinguish between them. Then you will really be an alert bird watcher.

About one-fourth of the average family food budget is spent for meat.

Sugar Bowl To Fish

By Mrs. Otto Dorr

Part 5: Carlina's Adventure

Carlina's adventures and surprises did not end with her wedding. After her children grew tall she taught school for many years.

At one vacation time, fishermen came to her house searching for a teacher to go to their island home, two miles from the village landing. Very few cared to be so far away from town for a little one room school.

She would have to leave on Sunday afternoon and not return until the weekend, but there was a teacher's house beside the school building for her home.

She thought of the children there and said, "I can go."

Every week her boxes of groceries and clothing were loaded in an open boat with her extra wraps for wind and waves with spray often got their cargo wet.

When winter time neared ice made water travel dangerous, then Carlina could not leave the island, but the fishermen brought her orders of food and her mail whenever they could go ashore. Some weeks they did not go in for even beef or pork, but at least they always shared a variety of fish with the teacher.

Happy Sundays

Sunday was a long day, there was no church service or any Sunday school for the children.

Carlina felt sorry for the little folks so she invited them to come to her house for one hour each Sabbath morning, to tell them Bible stories and teach them songs. They had never had such happy Sundays.

One day, through her ear-phone radio, Carlina heard a request for "An Interesting Experience" letter. She wrote of her Island Sundays.

Over the wide air that letter was broadcast, then another surprise came to her, a packet of Sunday School supplies was coming for her pupils.

Every time the fishermen went ashore they looked for that mail; every time they came home the children asked "Has it come?"

One day a BIG box was waiting! They took it to Carlina's house and she opened it to find such pictures, stories, crayons, colored papers and scissors as had never come to their island before.

As long as she taught the gift supplies continued. Then one summer the little school was closed, for the fishermen were moving away to town.

When Carlina made her last trip through the silky waves and clean river winds she knew that now the children could go to Sunday School all the year round ashore.

CIVIC PRIDE

SANTA BARBARA, Calif. (AP) — Bert R. Seymour Jr. mailed in his $2 bail check to Municipal Court for an overtime parking citation—like some other 90 persons daily.

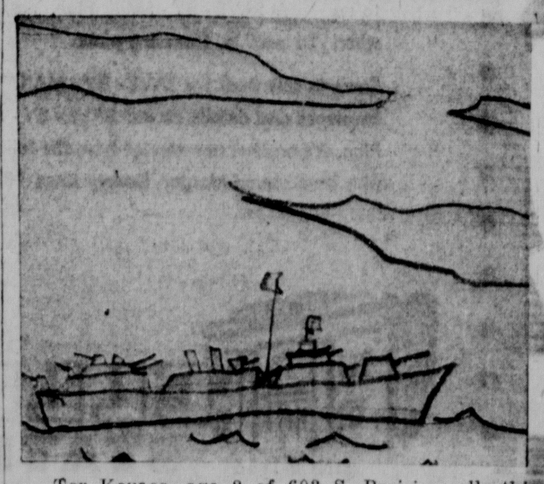

But Seymour's check was made out to: "The beautiful city of Santa Barbara, the poor city without decent off-street parking."

Know your cheese! Try Camembert, for instance, orignally from France. It has a thin whitish crust and a soft, creamy, yellowish interior. Allow Camembert to come to room temperature before serving so it becomes soft and runny.

Scouts Beat The Heat

Boy Scout Troop 106 has found part of the secret of how to keep cool and make money too at the fair. Their recipe? "Immerse one Boy Scout occasionally in a deep tub of cold water." This can be done when any interested spectator tosses three base balls

He doesn't mind however, "It was getting hot here anyhow," he said.

The boy taking the dip this time is Scout Bill Boston.

OUT OF THE MOUTHS OF BABES

"Mommy! Howard Johnson's!"

The three year old in the back seat spies the Orange Roof a half-mile ahead. Little Peter screams with delight and Mary chimes in, too.

Dad brakes slowly. He has to stop—he already knows he'll lose his argument to keep on for another half-hour.

We love children. We like to please them. And they must like places where they see other children, too. Is the Orange Roof a kind of fairyland, a home of storybook people? What is this strange something that means so much to children? Why not ask them? They know—perhaps better than we.

WATCHDOG ROUTS PROWLERS 'CASING' GROCERY AT 2 A.M.

JERSEYVILLE— Prowlers in the west part of the city early Wednesday morning were driven away by the action of a watch dog owned in the locality.

A car containing two men pulled into the Hill street vicinity about 2 a.m. Wednesday and parked in the shadows of trees not far from the Jess Hamblin residence. One of the occupants of the car got out and walked up the alley behind the store operated by John Wesley under the name of Johnnie's Grocery.

The dog involved in the matter had aroused residents of the vicinity and when the prowler arrived at a point opposite the rear of the store, the dog rushed at him, growling fiercely, and the intruder rushed back to the car on Hill street and got in. After another few minutes in which the motor of the car continued to run softly, the vehicle took off.

An hour and a half later, local officers received a report to the effect that two burglars had run into a burglar alarm system and siren at a store in Eldred.

Jerseyville night police and sheriff's officers set up a road block in the Jersey county are in conjunction with state police, and Greene county officers did the same.

According to reports at the office of Sheriff Herman C. Kirchner here Wednesday morning, the car containing the two burglars had approached a road block in the Greene county locality. They ditched their car and took off into an adjoining corn field.

ROCKET WILL SOAR TO NEW HEIGHTS—

An Air Force-sponsored plan, Operation Far Side, will use the largest balloon ever launched to help fire a rocket expected to soar thousands of miles into space. The rocket will be launched from the balloon 20 miles above the Pacific Ocean in September. Purpose of the rocket, which will carry a 3½-pound, highly complex package of scientific instruments at a top speed of more than 17,000 m.p.h. is to investigate atmospheric and space phenomena at extremely high altitudes. Included in the 6 x 4-inch package will be a tiny but powerful radio to transmit data to ground receiving and recording stations. The huge balloon, 200 feet in diameter, will hoist the 1,900-pound, 23-foot-long rocket to 100,000 feet before it is fired. This minimizes friction encountered by firing it through the earth's atmosphere. The four-stage rocket will blast upward, straight through the balloon, with a first-stage thrust of 160,000 pounds. From stage four the instrument package and the burned-out last-stage rocket will continue upward through space as a free projectile. The rocket was developed by Aeronutronic Systems, Inc., of Los Angeles, Calif., the balloon by General Mills.

Sketch shows the rocket vehicle and its launcher being prepared for flight. Launcher, atop truck, is attached to ring at end of balloon. Balloon is being filled with helium from tanks at right. When the 3,750,000-cubic-foot bag is partially filled, it will lift rocket and launcher off truck. As it rises, the gas expands so that at 100,000 feet it will be fully inflated.

Cars ARE MY Line
by: E. W. Brown
IT TAKES ALL KINDS

You've heard about the truth, the whole truth and nothing but the truth.

We in the automobile business have witnessed in the last few years an outbreak of wild advertising from, sadly enough, car dealers in larger towns. The advertising is certainly the truth but, as many friends have told us, not quite the whole truth.

We heard of a man once (no one around here of course) who told his wife "What are you mad about; haven't I always turned my pay check over to you on the first of every month?"

"Sure," said his wife, "but I found out you got paid on the 15th too."

Many of our friends have found that at the big, flossy car supermarkets they can get $500 reductions on a new car. But, surprisingly enough (or really not so surprising) they find their old car is suddenly worth $500, or even $600, less than a fair trade-in value.

Or, what is more usual, their old car is valued for trade-in by a persuasive salesman at several hundred dollars more than they thought possible—always a very flattering thing. And then they find the price of the new car isn't quite as cheap as they thought, and they have to buy a lot of extras and the whole deal is out the window unless they finance the car through the dealer.

Well, I like to sell cars, too. But I'm old fashioned enough to think you can make money and make friends at the same time. Our philosophy here has always been to make a deal with a customer so that he'll be pleased enough to come back the next time.

That costs us money but it's worth it all round.

In my position I've been able to analyze some of the super-wonderful car deals offered lately. I've found our deals beat any terms I've ever seen. It's just that we use a little smaller type to tell you about them.

Our buy of the week is a 1954 Packard Super Clipper complete with air conditioning. See it today.

Janet's Care Pays Big Dividends

Janet Black displays some of the affection which experts say helps to make prize-winners of livestock. Janet's nine year old Guernsey dairy cow is certainly a prize-winner. In the judging Wednesday at the Morgan County Jr. Fair her entry was selected as the grand champion over all breeds in Department B, dairy cattle. This is not a new event for Janet either. Last year this same cow was selected grand champion of the Guernsey division. Janet received her trophy at the championship society horse show Saturday evening.

Janet will be a freshman at Jacksonville High school in September. She is a member of the East Side Junior 4-H club. Her champion dairy cow is one of her projects. She is also exhibiting swine at the fair on which she only got "thirds and fourths."

Hurricanes Of Snow, Subzero Temperatures Make Virtual Prisoners Of Scientists At South Pole

(Editor's Note: While most of us swelter in the summer heat, a group of Americans are waiting patiently for the sun, when we are done with it. They are at the South Pole and the way they spend their long winter is described by a reporter who was there. Now back and thawed out, he has kept in touch by radio.

By JAMES F. TOMLINSON
AP Staff Writer

Pizza pies and coffee breaks are helping 300 Americans endure the long Antarctic winter night.

That's the word from U.S. scientists and sailors encamped at the South Pole and six other snowbound bases.

The men say they are well and happy. But often they are virtual prisoners in their aluminum-and-plywood huts. Their jailers: hurricanes of snow and subzero temperatures.

While friends at home swelter in the summer sun, the men at the bottom of the world stick close to the stove. For it's winter now in Antarctica.

The scientists arrived in the Antarctic months ago to prepare for the International Geophysical Year. They had their instruments set up and ready to go when the IGY officially started July 1.

Some of the scientists are making hour-by-hour checks of the weather. Others drill into the ice. Still others snap pictures of the Aurora Australis—the shimmering Curtains of light that glow in the dark southern sky.

While awaiting spring and the return of the sun, the Americans are living in quarters as cozy as a lodge at a ski resort.

During a recent storm at Little America V the wind shrieked at 75 m.p.h. Huge snow drifts pressed against the huts. Walls had to be strengthened with shoring timbers.

The fine snow sifted through the tiniest crack.

Choking drifts enveloped a chimney and snuffed out a fire in the stove below.

A man who staggered out into the blinding storm tied a lifeline around his waist. The line was played out by men standing only a step from the safety of a hut.

One bitter day Richard Hills, Navy photographer second class of Fayette, Ala., clambered atop a fuel tank to take pictures. Later, in jumping down, he found he couldn't bend his knees. His heavy trousers were frozen.

Workmen discovered that when they applied pressure to a screwdriver, it snapped like glass.

At the mountain-ringed McMurdo Sound outpost, winds of nearly 90 m.p.h. ripped out power lines and toppled poles.

The nine scientists and nine Navy men dug in at the South Pole are experiencing the world's worst weather, however.

The polar camp sits on a flat, almost featureless desert of snow 9,200 feet high. During April, May and June the temperature averaged -70 around the clock. And on the moonlit morning of May 12 the thermometer registered 100.4 degrees below zero — the coldest natural temperature ever recorded on the face of the earth.

An almost constant wind adds to the misery.

"The combination of cold and wind can freeze an exposed face or hand in a matter of seconds," the base reported.

The white spots of frostbite soon show on the skin. A man's breath crackles in the air. The huffing and puffing of the men even created a light fog in the tunnel connecting the huts at the pole.

Dr. Paul Siple, veteran Antarctic explorer who heads the scientific team at the pole, said the men lost weight early in their stay. Siple dropped from 250 pounds to 211. But later he and the others started putting on pounds again.

The loss apparently was due to the heavy labor the men performed in setting up camp.

Cold weather whets appetites, as the cooks at each base will testify.

Navy Cook Edward H. Davis, a commissaryman first class from Clinton, Iowa, reported from the Ellsworth Station:

"The men are eating one and a half times their normal amount of food. Due to the bitter cold, there are a lot of coffee breaks, and coffee consumption has climbed to four times normal."

One evening at the McMurdo base the hungry residents grumbled when dinner was delayed. There were fears of a culinary catastrophe in the kitchen.

But, as the diners reported later by radio, this is what they found upon entering the mess hall:

"The lights were dimmed, candles were lighted, the tables were decorated, and spaghetti, various kinds of pizza, hot rolls and ice cream were featured. The cooks did not limit their ingenuity to food, but talked the Padre out of a bit of wine to add another specialty to their menu.

"It resulted in a wonderful Italian dinner accompanied by appropriate Italian music—a memorable evening."

Waistlines expanded so fast at the Byrd station in Marie Byrd Land that the whole camp went on a diet. Only two meals are served daily—Brunch from 9:30 to 10:15 a.m. and dinner at 5 p.m. There's an early afternoon coffee break, though, with cookies, muffins or doughnuts.

The camp doctor says the sedentary indoor winter life requires fewer calories for warmth and energy.

To keep from getting too fat the men at the Ellsworth Base converted an empty quonset hut into a gym. They equipped it with weight-lifting apparatus and even built a steam bath.

At most of the bases, water for drinking and bathing and for washing the dinner dishes comes from melted snow. A sailor in a bulldozer scoops up the snow and dumps it into a melter.

All is not work for today's explorers. There's plenty of time for play.

At Little America young IGY scientists have formed the "Little American Theatre of the Ice" to present humorous skits on camp life. Glaciologist William J. Cromie of Long Island City, N.Y., writes, directs and acts in the shows.

The cultivation of beards is a widespread hobby at all the bases. At last count there were 76 beards, 6 moustaches and 27 clean - shaven faces at Little America.

HITCHED—Turning back the clock to the latter days of the 19th century, Dennis O'Hare and his bride, the former Anna Marie Nigro, prepare to add a horse-and-buggy touch to their wedding in Kansas City, Mo. They're ready to leave the church in a horse-drawn carriage which was used by Grover Cleveland when he was president of the United States.

"SMILE, SMILE, SMILE . . ."—Three playful porpoises appear to be grinning as they surface at Los Angeles Marineland. They seem happy enough with the temperature of the water, but one could almost believe they came up to check the electronic temperature-recording apparatus at left. Engineers used the device while installing a new automatic system for keeping all the tank's tenants quite cozy.

GOING, GOING, REAL GONE

PARIS, Ky. (AP) — James W. Thompson, a tobacco auctioneer for 35 years, has a new chant.

He's just recorded two ballads for a Cincinnati record firm.

Thompson, who has a range of one-half an octave, first records his songs on a tape recorder at home, then sends the tape to Skeets Brannon in Lexington. Brannon writes the notes for the sheet music and returns it to Thompson, who again records the song on tape. His accompanist on the piano usually is Police Judge Thomas Johnston.

The songs recorded by Thompson are "Popoh House" and "Headin' Home."

Two Pittsfield Youths Enlist In U.S. Navy

PITTSFIELD— Two Pittsfield boys have enlisted in the regular Navy recently at its branch recruiting station in Hannibal, Mo.

They are Larry Freeman, son of Mrs. Mary Freeman of East Adams street and James Lee Cantrell, son of Mrs. Kathleen Jones of South Memorial street.

Freeman enlisted under the Navy's high school program as a seaman recruit.

Cantrell enlisted for a minority cruise as a seaman recruit and will be released on his 21st birthday.

Both were sent to Great Lakes for boot training.

When you are baking a sponge cake for a jelly roll, grease the pan and line bottom almost to edges with waxed paper; rub the paper with salad (not olive) oil. The oil seems to make it fairly easy to remove the paper after the cake is baked.

Fresh apricots do not need to be peeled before canning them, but make sure you wash them thoroughly.

ALL FOR SCIENCE

RICHMOND, Va. (AP)—Four doctors at the Medical College of Virginia took a lot of ribbing from associates when they departed for Florida and a week of "scientific fishing."

"I hate fishing," said Dr. E. Lovell Becker, head of the MCV renal electrolyte (kidney) laboratory. "I can't understand anybody who has nothing better to do than to sit all day and fish."

Object of the trip, which has been four years in the making and was prefaced by a stack of correspondence four inches thick, is to discover as much as possible about as many types of fish as the group can obtain. They hope to discover something of the evolutionary development of kidneys — how they overcome changes in environment.

Two Inch Rain Recorded Here

Rainfall late Saturday afternoon totalled two inches, according to readings on several rain gauges in the city.

About 4:30 o'clock Saturday one-half inch of rain fell in the city.

About 6:30 p.m., the skies really opened up and within a short time one and one-half inches of rain descended.

Many streets were flooded and most streams were running bank full.

Pittsfield Schools Make Three New Appointments

PITTSFIELD— The Board of Education of Pittsfield Community District No. 10 announces the appointment of Marshall Earl King of Scottsburg, Ind., to the position of half time Band and Vocal teacher for the East Pike high school at Pittsfield. Mr. King is 23 years of age and unmarried. He graduated in June of this year from the University of Indiana School of Music, and was a member of the University's Marching Band.

With the employment of Mr. King the number of vacancies still existing in the Unit District has been reduced to two; a Junior High and a fourth grade teaching position in the Pittsfield schools.

New Principal

Harold Claus who has been a member of the Junior high school faculty the past four years has been appointed to the position of Supervising Principal of the elementary schools of the city, the Higbee Junior high, the South and the East schools.

Mr. Claus before coming to Pittsfield had a wide experience in teaching and supervising. He holds a Master's degree from the University of Chicago in the fields of Administration and Supervision, and has held the position of Superintendent of Schools at Stockton, Ill., and as Principal of the Consolidated schools at McNabb, Ill.

He has assumed the duties of his new position and will be in his office at the Higbee high school each day of the week during the month of August for the convenience of parents who will enter their children in school this fall.
